NAZI ARTILLERY SMASHED AT NARVIK

German Troops Blasted Out Of High Positions

Heavy Bombardment From British Naval Guns Destroys Emplacements — Allies Fighting Magnificently Against Odds

STOCKHOLM, April 30.—German troops in Narvik, their artillery smashed, were reported today to be clinging to shore-line machine-gun nests under heavy bombardment from British naval forces.

Advices from Riksgransen, Swedish border station on the iron ore line from Narvik, said that the Germans had lost all their mountain artillery positions, and that a German battery in a Narvik churchyard had been destroyed by British guns.

Allied Forces Hard Pressed

By FRED BACKHOUSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 30.—An authoritative military source conceded today that Allied troops, fighting "magnificently," were being "hard pressed" on the Dombas front, 110 miles south of Trondheim, but added that the Nazi claim that separate German forces had established a connection on the railway to the southwest of Storen, 80 miles north of Dombas, should be treated with all reserve.

Earlier correspondents had been cautioned that "a report that Storen is in German hands is a rumor emanating from Swedish sources which is not confirmed."

Should the report of the taking of Storen be true, neutral observers explained, it would mean that the Nazis are on the way to reaching success in their drive to get reinforcements to Trondheim.

COULD BLOCK TRANSPORT

In regard to the Nazi claim that the German columns had met, it was explained that there is a considerable difference between a "meeting" of forces and establishing a definite connection. Even if the German forces did make some kind of junction, raiding columns of Allied troops could make it impossible for the Germans to transport any worthwhile volume of supplies and reinforcements to Trondheim.

A nutshell version of the fighting in Norway was given by one source as follows: "The news suggests that things are going well at Narvik, that the position at Namsos is stationary, but in hand, and that at Dombas the situation is regarded as difficult."

Reports that the Germans hold both Storen, 30 miles south of Trondheim, and Roros, farther south, have not been confirmed here. The Allies are said to be holding Hjerkinn, a few miles northeast of Dombas.

Hjerkinn and Ulsberg are two entire points along the Oslo-Trondhaim railway which is threatened by German troops crossing from the Osterdal across secondary mountain roads in a flanking attempt.

FORCES LANDED

Swedish reports said that heavy fighting was taking place at both these points while earlier messages had said that large Allied forces had been landed at two points near Andalsnes and rushed to reinforce the troops holding out along the railway.

Oil Firms To Face Combine Act Charges

VICTORIA, April 30.—Seeking to end a gasoline "drought" in British Columbia, the provincial government today ordered the service of a writ against nine oil companies, charging them with operating a combine.

Issuance of the writ at Victoria yesterday by Attorney-General Gordon Wismer followed unsuccessful negotiations between the government and the companies who suspended deliveries of gasoline to service stations last week rather than abide by a government order requiring the wholesale price of the fuel three cents a gallon.

INVESTIGATION ASKED

Named in the writ were Home Oil Distributors, Ltd.; Imperial Oil Company; Shell Oil Company of B.C.; Signal Oil Company; Standard Oil Co. of B.C.; the Texas Company of Canada; Union Oil of Canada; McColl Frontenac Oil Co.; and the B.C. Fuel Co., Ltd.

The writ was sent to Vancouver last night for service today against eight of the companies. B.C. Fuel Company, which has headquarters in Victoria, will be served here.

HOUSE SESSION IS CALLED FOR ACTION ON GAS

British Columbia Legislature Will Deal With Impasse

VICTORIA, April 30.—Premier Pattullo today announced a special session of the British Columbia legislature is being called for next week to deal with the impasse with gasoline companies over their suspension of gasoline to retailers. The session is set for May 8.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

Text of the statement by Premier Pattullo is as follows:

I would like the public to thoroughly understand the gasoline situation. The issue is whether the public is to retain control of the sale of gasoline or not. The oil companies are fighting against control and the government proposes to maintain control.

The companies have been advised, both by the control board and myself, that the board is prepared to review the order fixing the reduction of three cents in the price of gasoline and the chairman of the board specifically advised the companies that if they would let him know what increase has taken place in the cost since the regulation was made, he would give his decision within 24 hours. The companies would not accept this proposal.

What they asked is that the order be suspended and that a new price basis be set by agreement on conditions outlined by the companies. In other words, they want to get out from under the act and settle the matter solely by agreement. The Supreme Court of Canada has upheld the validity of the provincial legislation and the government proposes to stand by it.

It might be well for the public to know that since the original order reducing the price of gasoline three cents was made, the companies have taken out of the pockets of gasoline users over $2,500,000, which they would not have taken had the order operated, and now they do not hesitate to refuse to sell gasoline for the short time necessary to review the existing order.

FORCE GOVERNMENT'S HAND

In the companies' determination to get out from under control of the board, they evidently propose to force the hand of the government by refusing sale of gasoline, apparently hoping that the immediate necessity will force the government to give way.

I ask the public to be patient and, if necessary, to endure some temporary disability until the matter is adjusted.

Meanwhile we are calling the legislature together next week in special session to submit further measures which will be in the public interest.

Russian Reply On Trade Talks Unsatisfactory

LONDON, April 30.—Sources close to the foreign office asserted today that the Russian reply to recent British offers to negotiate a trade agreement was "not considered satisfactory" because Russia "regards exports of goods to Germany as her own affair."

ALLIES INFLICT LOSSES ON GERMANS AT DOMBAS

A Happy Reunion In War-Time London

Home on leave from France, a British army sergeant is greeted by his family on arrival in London. Thrilled are the two young sons at right as being permitted to tote the "Bandolo" which sergeant daddy becomes re-acquainted with the youngest member of the family. War Office Communique Says All Enemy Attacks On Allied-Held Positions Repulsed With Heavy Casualties

By WEBB MILLER
British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, April 30.—A war office communique today said that Allied forces in Norway's Gudbrands Valley again had taken up positions defending the vital railroad junction of Dombas. German troops suffered heavy casualties in the fighting, the communique said.

The communique was issued after a military spokesman had said that the Germans had taken the town of Storen, south of Trondheim. The Allied troops are fighting to defend the important railroad from Dombas to Storen.

"In Sunday's fighting in the Gudbrands valley, the enemy attacked strongly with the support of tanks and low-flying aircraft," the communique said.

"All attacks were repulsed with heavy losses including the destruction of three medium tanks.

"During the night our troops took up positions covering Dombas.

AIR ATTACKS CONTINUE

"Air attacks on Andalsnes and Molde (the British landing base on the coast south of Trondheim) continued during the day.

"In the Namsos and Narvik areas the situation remained unchanged.

Previously, a spokesman had described the Allied position along the Dombas-Storeen railroad as difficult after the reported fall of Storeen.

Confirmation of the report would mean that the Germans, driving up the two main valleys from southern Norway, were within 25 miles of their goal—a juncture of forces with the German holding Trondheim.

However, the ministry of information in a special bulletin said:

"The report that Storen is in German hands is a rumor emanating from Swedish sources which is not confirmed."

It was indicated that German motorized forces were driving strongly up the Gudbrands valley but they were not probably within five or six miles of Dombas, the railroad junction and the Allied base south of Storen. "Some Allied troops were still at Dombas, the military informant said, but it was believed that the main Allied position was in the neighborhood of Hjerkinn, about 20 miles north of Dombas.

NAZI TANKS DESTROYED

The Allies had beaten off a strong German attack southeast of Dombas on the road to Oslo, Sunday and Monday, it was asserted, and had destroyed some German tanks of medium size.

In the Bergen area, German troops advancing against the Norwegians were reported to be fighting near the town of Gedvaten, on an arm of the Sognefjord.

In the Namsos area, north of Trondheim, Allied troops were holding their positions as of yesterday, north of Steinkjer, and dispatches which reached here indicated that at present there was only patrol activity, with the German and Allied lines more or less stabilized.

A military informant, summing up the situation in Norway said: "Things are going well at Narvik, the situation is stationary and in hand at Namsos and the situation is difficult at Dombas."

Allied Forces Still Control Railroad

By FRANCIS McEACHEN
British United Press Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

FJAELNESS, Swedish-Norwegian Frontier, April 30.—Norwegian military officers on the frontier asserted today that Allied forces still control the railroad from Dombas to Storeen.

The Norwegian officers said that German claims that they had cut the Dombas-Storeen railroad—vital to communications of the central Norwegian front—were incorrect.

Allied artillery is being assembled all along the railroad from Dombas to Storeen to repel the German attacks, according to the Norwegian officers.

FRENCH ASSEMBLE

They said that French forces had been assembled in the vicinity of Hjerkinn, on the railroad junction of Dombas, to fight off the German column that attempted to break through the mountains from the Oesterdalen valley and cut the railroad.

It was indicated that the British, French and Norwegian forces were in strong positions at Dombas and were rapidly strengthening their positions along the railroad to Storeen in a determined effort to keep the railroad line open.

RELIEF COUNT AGAINST CITY IS DISMISSED

Court Finds R. J. Metcalfe Withheld Information Requested

Charge of "without lawful excuse failing to provide material aid to R. J. Metcalfe contrary to the provisions of the Public Welfare Act" laid against the City of Edmonton was dismissed after hearing the case before Magistrate A. L. Miller, K.C., in police court Tuesday.

In dismissing the charge Magistrate Miller remarked: "I am satisfied that the act requires that certain information shall be given by the relief case and that that information was withheld."

Metcalfe, in the witness stand, said that the city had held up his relief for week Feb. 3-9, 1940, after he had refused to reveal the earnings of two of his children who were no longer living at home.

CLAIMS NO RIGHT

He claimed that the city had no right to demand any information whatsoever about members of the family who were not depending in any way upon the relief department for their livelihood.

H. F. McKee, manager of the special relief department said that Metcalfe had been receiving relief for himself and his family since Jan. 1931, in that period he had received a total of $8,118.11, had received work credits from the city of $711.20 for work done, which left a balance of $7,406.91.

Mr. McKee said the department demanded information concerning the earnings of other members of the family because it was the practice of the department to require the support of those members in the event of the support of the family where they were earning enough to make this possible. When information was withheld from them they were unable to get a complete picture of the family's financial circumstances, he said.

CHARGE ACCOUNT

Mr. Metcalfe also told the court that he ran a charge account with the city corporation and that on account was about $200 in arrears. He said he kept the account in good standing by making payments out of his casual earnings.

Thomas E. Garside, K.C., city solicitor, appearing for the City of Edmonton, argued: "The question is merely this: Are we going to have relief departments run by responsible officials appointed by the city and operating under strict supervision of the provincial government authorities, or are we going to permit men like Mr. Metcalfe to dictate to the city what it shall do and how it shall do it?"

Germans Bomb Two Norwegian Hospital Ships Killing Five

SOMEWHERE IN NORWAY, April 30. — Two Norwegian hospital ships were bombed and machine-gunned by German planes today off the western coast of Norway, although both were distinctly marked with Red crosses, Norsk Telegrambyraa, the Norwegian news agency, charged.

The vessels were the Brand-4 and the Bethel. On the Brand-4, one doctor, three nurses and one crew member were killed, one person seriously wounded and others slightly injured, the agency said.

The attack, Norsk Telegrambyraa said, took place in broad daylight, and the planes came down to about 150 feet to machine-gun the vessels.

The Brand-4 had just brought 90 wounded to the hospital at Aalesund and was returning to fetch new casualties when attacked several times with bombs and machine-guns.

A German officer now in the Aalesund hospital, the agency reported, said that some days ago he informed German authorities by telegram, via Stockholm, that the Brand-4 was exclusively in Red Cross service and therefore should be spared from attack, together with the Bethel.

Both ships were painted white and distinctly marked with red crosses in many places, according to the Geneva Red Cross convention.

CHAMBERLAIN DEFERS TALK NORSE FIGHT

Repeats Allies Not Vindictive Toward German People

LONDON, April 30.—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that he did not think "it would be in the public interest" to make a statement on the Allied campaign in Norway.

Mr. Chamberlain later said he declined to make a statement on the Norwegian campaign as "not possible but declined to set a date. He said, however, he expected to give the house some information this week.

The prime minister reiterated that the Allies have "no vindictive designs against the German people."

This was his answer when he was asked if he would take steps to avoid complete identification between Germans and the Nazi government in all statement of government policy.

The German people, he said, "must realize their responsibilities for prolonging the war and the suffering that it would bring to them."

The prime minister asserted that was the attitude of the British government and declined amplification when a questioner asked a word had gone forth that government spokesmen should endeavor to impress the British people with the fact that the German people are as vile as their Nazi leaders."

War Secretary Oliver Stanley told a questioner that a small group of correspondents are "ready to go to Norway on short notice and that facilities for publicity on the Scandinavian campaign will be given as soon as circumstances permit.

British Cruiser Sails From U.S.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., April 30.—The British light cruiser Caradoc, which put into port for fuel yesterday, sailed shortly after midnight. Her destination was not disclosed. British authorities declined to discuss whether the Caradoc's visit had any connection with the presence of five Danish merchantmen here since the outbreak of Norwegian hostilities.

TWO SUBMARINES PRESUMED LOST ADMIRALTY SAYS

LONDON, April 30.—The Admiralty announced today that two submarines, the Sterlet and the Tarpon, are overdue and must be presumed lost.

Two trawlers, the Bradman and the Cape Siretoko, were sunk by bombs. No loss of life was reported.

The Admiralty statement follows:

"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that His Majesty's submarines Tarpon (Lieut.-Commander H. J. Caldwell, R.N.) and Sterlet (Lieut.-Commander G. H. S. Havard, R.N.) are now considerably overdue and must be considered lost.

"The next of kin have been informed.

"His Majesty's trawlers Bradman (Lieut. A. F. Talbot, R.N.) and Cape Siretoko (Lieut. A. N. Blundell, R.N.R.) sustained damage by bombs and subsequently sank. No loss of life has been reported in their case.

CALGARY LOSES INITIAL ROUND DAMAGE SUIT

Mr. Justice Howson Rules City Received Proper Notice

CALGARY, April 30.—The City of Calgary has lost the first round in an action brought by the estate of Mabel Anna Phillips for $50,000 damages arising from her death in the Calgary General hospital, February 11, 1939.

In a judgment handed down today, Mr. Justice W. A. Howson dismissed the claim of the city that it had not received proper notice of the intention of the plaintiff estate to bring suit and the action was, therefore, not maintainable as far as the city or the Calgary hospital board were concerned.

DEFENCE FAILED

His Lordship held that the notices given were in accordance with the city's charter and consequently the defence of the city on the ground that the notices were inadequate failed. Costs of the issue would go to the plaintiff, he ruled.

Mabel Anna Phillips, spinster of Ardenode, Alberta, died at the age of 26 years, after a thyroid gland operation, in the General hospital. She was also known as Mabel Anna Watson.

According to the statement of claim, Miss Phillips died as a result of nitrous oxide poisoning, asphyxiation, or lack of oxygen arising from improper connection of tubes to the anaesthetic machine or through lack of skill in operation of the machine.

MINISTER ASKS SYMPATHY FOR WAR BLOCKADE

Britain Fighting For Life, Economic Battle Aide Declares

LONDON, April 30 — Ronald Cross, minister directing Britain's blockade of Germany, pleaded today for United States "understanding" of economic warfare . . . the weapon which he said would shorten the war in which "we are fighting for our lives."

Speaking at an American chamber of commerce luncheon, the minister of economic warfare declared it to be "our hope that measures which have been forced upon us will not in the long run be to the economic disadvantage of the United States.

Britain's choice, he added, was between "hardship and loss to our neutral friends" or seeing "our economic weapon blunted in our hand."

LEAK IN BLOCKADE

The minister said that one "undoubtedly serious" leak in the blockade was the passage of copper, rubber, tin and other materials through Vladivostok, Russian Pacific port. He added that the United States has been a source of much of these raw materials and we wonder how far it is generally realized in your country that important supplies of key war materials have reached Germany in this way."

Mr. Cross declared there was no foundation for tales that Britain used the examination of mails "to direct orders from American to British exporters."

NO MORE DELAYS

Appealing for greater use of the "efficient" coastal convoy system between which shipmen tell the British authorities exactly what the ships are carrying, how they sail, Mr. Cross said complaints about delays are "largely a thing of the past."

The continuance of that rate of progress depends on "the extent to which American shipowners endeavor to make full use of the Mediterranean," that "Mediterranean" vessels need not enter the control base.

Big Flying Boats Carry British Military Experts To Vital Norway Points

LONDON, April 30—The Press Association said last night it had learned from a Royal Air Force flier that big Sunderland flying boats attached to the R. A. F. coastal command have been used to land parties of British experts at important points in Norway to prepare the way for land and air operations.

The Sunderlands, descending on Norwegian Fjords, have put ashore these parties apparently at specially chosen pre-arranged points.

The flier, a bluff, fair young man with a ruddy complexion, was quoted by the Press Association as saying that no British ship had yet come to harm in any convoy protected from enemy attack by defending planes.

U-BOATS SCARCE NOW

Describing his fellow fliers as a "tough lot," he said there was practically no shipping along the Norwegian coast now except Allied traffic.

"The Germans no doubt are getting reinforcements up country and are of course putting some shipping across the Skagerrak, but Hitler is not getting things all his own way," he said. "You don't see so many of his submarines now, either.

"There may be plenty of young men ready to die for the Fuehrer, but that does not turn them into trained submarine crews."

He said the northern Norwegian port of Namsos, Allied debarkation point heavily bombed by the Germans, "Looks like those pictures of Ypres in the last war."

The British coastal command fliers have undertaken about 12 raids on Stavanger and Bergen, he added.

"These were harassing raids with machine-gun fire and incendiary bombs," he said. "The bomber command fellows naturally did the heavy stuff.

"One pilot, who was flying in formation, was told to attack enemy aircraft in the air around Stavanger and Bergen. He lost touch with his formation in a cloud and so went off on his own initiative.

"He saw no enemy planes in the air but saw a lot on the ground and so he went for them. He seems to have destroyed one and damaged two others.

"He later attacked a couple of planes afloat in a fjord and on his way back had a scrap with a Junkers 88 which had already been damaged by his own formation. We can hope that that Junkers did not get home.

"Another of our aircraft got a submarine which was lurking in a fjord after the observer had discovered it as a mere speck on his view-finder."

(This apparently was the U-boat referred to in an air ministry announcement which said Monday that a German submarine had been sunk by a Sunderland flying boat which bombed it close to the Norwegian coast. Date of the encounter was not given.)

ESCAPES 12 JUNKERS

Another pilot told last night how a giant Sunderland flying boat escaped from an intensive bombing attack by 12 German Junkers, fought off an attack by a Messerschmitt 110 and returned to its base with only a few small bullet holes.

The flying boat had landed alongside a destroyer near Molde fjord, north of Andalsnes, to deliver information. It had scarcely come to rest a short distance from the warship when 12 Junker 88's in four flights of three appeared over Molde and proceeded to drop bombs.

After directing more than a score of bombs on the town, the bombers turned their attention to the flying boat and the destroyer. During the attack one rack of bombs was aimed unsuccessfully from each of the three groups of Junkers.

ALLIES BLAST NAZIS OUT OF KEY POSITIONS

that "Aircraft of the R. A. F. last night attacked the enemy air base at Fornebu with bombs," and the British Broadcasting Corporation later said that other German airdromes were raided.

The B. B. C. quoted a Swedish source as saying that the Allies had landed new troops at two points on the western Norwegian coast, in the Nord and Sunndals Fjords. The Nord Fjord is linked to Dombas by a good road and Sunndals Fjord is connected by another road to Storen, important railway centre.

At Narvik British troops were reported to be "closing in" and the property of an ore company there was said to be burning. The source of these reports did not know the cause of the fire but said it might have been caused by Allied artillery or set by the Germans.

Action on the Steinkjer front was said to have "settled down" and to be confined largely to patrol operations.

One British source said that "demolitions are proving effective" and that the most difficult things to repair, such as bridges, are being destroyed. He said there was "absolutely no truth" in reports that British Indian troops were being used in the Norwegian campaign but said that British officers who had served with the Indian army were included in the northern expeditionary force because of their experience in mountain warfare.

Military observers here said unofficial Scandinavian reports contained estimates that as many as 60,000 German soldiers have been concentrated in the northern battle zone.

SPEED UP LANDING

The Allies, with anti-aircraft batteries and fighting planes in action against swarms of German bombers, were said to be speeding up the landing of reinforcements.

Fresh Allied troops, according to Swedish reports, have been landed at Sunndals Fjord, northeast of Andalsnes, and at Nord and Sogne Fjords to the southwest, and are moving into the Gudbrandsdal.

Reuters news agency reported today from Namsos that Polish and Czech legionnaires are among the Allied troops now "pouring into Norway in a steady flow."

The dispatch said that German troops are continuing to arrive in Norway but "it is thought" not as fast as the Allied reinforcements.

COME IN AIRPLANES

Most of the Germans are coming in airplanes, "30 or 40 at a time," or in coastal vessels capable of supporting not more than 100 men each," Reuters said.

The Allied troops were said to be debarking "at the original landing points and at some fresh places along the Norwegian west coast."

The British-French forces north of Trondheim, the dispatch said, are holding their present line "pending a favorable moment for continued disembarkations, which it is thought would make an offensive against Trondheim possible."

Allied naval and land forces were reported to be delaying "a vital attack on beleaguered Germans at Narvik, until they can assure themselves of the safety of Norwegian civilians whom the Germans won't allow to leave the town."

PREMIER KING CONFERS WITH U.S. LEADERS

Possibility Of Greenland Occupation Believed Discussed

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 30—Possibility of protective occupation of Greenland by Canadian forces and final details of the international agreement on development of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes seaway and power development are believed to have been discussed informally here yesterday by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Mr. King's three week-end meetings with Cordell Hull, United States secretary of state, and his brief call upon President Roosevelt Monday afternoon gave rise to a fresh crop of rumors which met with official silence from all quarters.

TALKS WITH LOTHIAN

The Prime Minister was with Secretary Hull Saturday, Sunday and yesterday. He declined to answer any questions on significance of these conversations. Mr. Hull said Mr. King had called Monday morning only to say goodbye and no governmental questions were discussed.

The Prime Minister lunched with the Marquess of Lothian, the British ambassador, and from the embassy went directly to the White House to spend a few minutes with the President. He then caught a mid-afternoon train for New York. He expects to be in Ottawa Wednesday noon.

In New York, the Prime Minister will stay with friends, attend a theatre and do some shopping. He expected to spend today in New York and leave late at night for Ottawa.

Mr. King's meeting with Lord Lothian, following closely upon a long conference between Secretary Hull and the British ambassador, gave rise to the belief that the status of Greenland was under discussion.

SAID SOCIAL CALLS

Hon. Loring Christie, Canadian minister to Washington, who played host to the Prime Minister during his week-end visit, said Mr. King's calls were purely social.

It was noticed the prime minister went about alone, carried no portfolio or documents, and all his movements here bore the outward evidence of complete informality. Nevertheless, it was believd that a number of important international relations were clarified and advanced as a result of these interchanges.

Mr. King said he had benefited greatly from his holiday. He appeared happy, rested and refreshed, and said he was now ready for the heavy program of work incidental to the opening of parliament May 16.

Mr. King called Monday morning on Secretary Hull in the latter's office. He arrived alone and posed readily for a group of news photographers who waited on the state department steps.

A half-hour later, the prime minister left Mr. Hull's office with Sumner Welles, assistant secretary of state. He was immediately surrounded by reporters who bombarded him with questions about the protection of Greenland, the St. Lawrence deep waterway and the subject of his Warm Springs talks with the president.

GIVES NO INTERVIEW

"I have nothing to say," Mr. King said. "I am sorry but that must be final. I am still on holidays. I said when I left Ottawa I would not be interviewed and I am going to keep my word."

Mr. Hull held his regular press conference almost immediately after the prime minister left his office. He told a questioner he was not ready to make any statement on progress of negotiations on the St. Lawrence development. He said he would want to confer again with the interested parties before answering any questions on the subject.

It was reported here that the United States government was ready to sign an agreement on the seaway project but that Canadian authorities were considering some changes in the draft agreement.

A Washington rumor is that the treaty, when signed, might be presented to congress in the form of a joint resolution to hasten its disposal, and that congress might meet again after the party nominating conventions this summer, if the agreement is not presented to it before the June adjournment.

Trade Protocol

BUDAPEST, April 30—Signature at Budapest of a protocol governing trade relations between Germany and Hungary was announced today by the German news agency.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

CONNAUGHT, 90, HOME TUESDAY FOR GREETINGS

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 30—The Duke of Connaught, former Governor General and known throughout Canada for his long and close connection with the Dominion, will be 90 tomorrow. He will spend the day quietly at home like most other days.

There will be many messages of congratulation and probably visits from members of the royal family. His Royal Highness is the King's great uncle and is the sole surviving son of Queen Victoria. Princess Beatrice, 83, is the Duke's sister.

Despite his age, the Duke continues to take a keen interest in Canadian affairs and particularly in the Canadian Active Service Force training in England.

The Duke, in his uniform as field marshal, on Monday paid a special visit to the Canadian training area to inspect the Royal Canadian regiment and the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, two units of which he is a colonel in chief.

Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Linton, assistant director of the medical services, introduced to the duke Lieut.-Colonel C. E. McCartney, officer commanding the Fourth Field Ambulance, of Fort William, Ont., and other officers and unit commanders, including Captain F. H. Bonnel, fourth casualty clearing station, of Edmonton.

GERMAN TROOPS ATTEMPT RUSES TO PASS LINES

By GUNNAR KNUTSSON
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

ON THE STEINKJER FRONT, Norway, April 30.—German troops have tried all manner of ruses to get through the Norwegian lines, sometimes dressing themselves in Norwegian peasant costumes.

A few, but not many, have been captured, according to Allied officers here.

On the way to the front I passed one little prison camp where several German Alpine troops and three aviators were under guard. Altogether, I was told, about 30 German flyers, from planes which had been shot or forced down, now have been interned in this region.

Experienced Alpine troops travelling on skis are now having their innings on this unusual fighting front.

Valuable silver foxes occasionally can be seen fleeing the sound of rifle fire. They are from farms abandoned after their caretakers had turned the animals loose to forage for themselves.

Part of the grim humor of the war is the plan of many soldiers to trap the foxes so they may take the pelts home to their wives and sweethearts.

Teachers Given Until Sept. 30 To Take Oath

VICTORIA, April 30.—School teachers of British Columbia have until Sept. 30 to take the oath of allegiance ordered by the provincial government, it was announced today by the department of education.

Several months ago, the government ordered the oaths to be taken after Hon. G. M. Weir, minister of education, said he had received complaints about utterances concerning the war by some teachers.

Con Man Sentenced To 18-Month Term

VANCOUVER, April 30—Thomas Banks Jackson, pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiring to defraud Spencer Pearse of Ravenscrag, Sask., out of $15,000 in 1935, and was sentenced to 18 months in jail by Police Magistrate H. S. Wood Monday.

Duke of Connaught Is Believed to Hold Record For Reviewing of Troops

LONDON, April 30—The Times, in an editorial on the Duke of Connaught's inspection of the Canadian troops at Aldershot, said today it believed that no commander ever had watched the march past of so many soldiers as Canada's former governor-general.

The newspaper recalled he had taken the salute in Egypt, South Africa, Canada, India and Great Britain.

"What thoughts passed through the Duke's mind as he drove by lines of soldiers and amid cheering people is no concern of the public," the Times said. "But it is safe to suppose that mingled with pride at the Canadian forces was the profound regret that once more in his long life he must see the manhood of the British Empire called upon to make an incalculable sacrifice in the cause of decent human existence."

The Times noted the "peculiar intimacy" between the duke and Canada because there he first saw active service when he joined his unit, the first battalion of the rifle brigade, and earned his first war medal defending the Dominion against rebels 70 years ago.

HOUSE SESSION IS CALLED FOR ACTION ON GAS

Efforts To Secure Alberta Gas Fail

CALGARY, April 30—Strenuous but vain efforts by a group of British Columbia independent service operaters were being made in Calgary yesterday to purchase gasoline in this city to fill empty tanks at home.

Representing retailers of gasoline in Cranbrook and nearby towns, they visited the gas and oil products Independent Refinery office in Calgary and other independent oil company offices in the city without encouraging results, it was reported in oil circles Monday.

There are only a few gasoline distributors in Calgary and southern Alberta not linked with one of the nine major oil firms in British Columbia who have refused to supply gasoline to service stations because of the British Columbia government's order reducing the wholesale price of gasoline three cents a gallon, making the retail price 24 cents a gallon, including a seven-cent government tax.

The feeling in Calgary is said to be that, even if Calgary independents felt inclined to intervene in the British Columbia "gasoline war," it would be uneconomic to lay down gasoline at Cranbrook or any place else in British Columbia to wholesale at 17 cents plus the seven cents tax.

P.E.I. Is Planning Petroleum Control

CHARLOTTETOWN, April 30 Legislation giving the Prince Edward Island government power to "regulate and control" the petroleum industry in this province was introduced in the legislature Monday by Premier Thane A. Campbell.

The premier presented the measure after the house adopted a resolution, proposed by him, declaring it was "expedient to regulate and control within this province the petroleum industry and to fix the prices at which petroleum products may be sold in this province."

Litigation on this question is in progress in British Columbia, Premier Campbell said. If the British Columbia legislation was upheld, he declared, Prince Edward Island would be remiss if such a law was not placed on the statute books.

He said he proposed to introduce similar legislation here, with the clause that the date for its coming into effect be fixed by proclamation of the lieutenant-governor-in-council. The proclamation would be held up until it was proven the British Columbia law was valid.

The premier's bill received first reading.

Vancouver Auto Traffic Dwindles

VANCOUVER, April 30.—Vancouver's usually heavy down-town motor traffic dwindled to a trickle today as gasoline companies continued to withhold their supply of auto fuel throughout British Columbia for the fifth consecutive day.

Ordinarily busy streets were almost as deserted as Sunday. The clanging of packed street cars provided the only familiar traffic sound.

Trucks and delivery cars—considered vital services—continued to operate. They obtained their supplies directly from oil company plants, along with tourists, civic employees, the militia and doctors.

McLarty Receives Request For Probe

OTTAWA, April 30—Hon. Norman McLarty, minister of labor, today received a request from the British Columbia government for an investigation of an alleged combine in the gasoline distributing business in that province.

The request was taken under consideration by departmental officials and no decision has yet been reached as to the form the investigation may take in the event it is held.

Government Studies Judgment On Gas

Provincial government officials on Tuesday were studying text of the judgment in the British Columbia gasoline case by which price of the product was reduced by three cents, making the price 24 cents a gallon retail. Copy of the text of the judgment is in the government's hands.

Officials concentrated their main study on two paragraphs in the judgment, which was written by Their Lordships Rinfret and Kerwin and delivered by the latter. The judgment was unanimous.

The judgment holds that the province has the right to set prices of gasoline and other commodities within its boundaries.

On this point the supreme court of Canada unanimously says: "The legislation in question is confined to regulating transactions that take place wholly within the province, and are therefore within the sovereign powers granted to the legislature in that respect by section 92 of the British North America Act."

This quotation from the supreme court judgment was from a Privy Council judgment, involving similar principles.

Quoting from the same Privy Council judgment, Their Lordships of the supreme court state that "The pith and substance of this Act is that it is an Act to regulate particular businesses entirely within the province and it is therefore intra vires of the province."

Under Alberta legislation the provincial price spreads board, of which W. D. King, deputy minister of trade and industry, is chairman, is clothed with authority to fix prices on various commodities. Since the war broke out prices have been fixed on some food stuffs to prevent profiteering.

Under the supreme court of Canada decision, the board will have full authority to fix gasoline prices in this province, but it is not likely that any action in this respect will be taken by the board until the McGillivray Royal Commission report is released.

The report is expected to contain some recommendations regarding prices.

London Press Complains Over Lack of Explicit War News from Norway

LONDON, April 30.—London's morning newspapers complained today there was a lack of explicit information from Norway.

"Almost every day we are told that the Prime Minister will soon be making a statement on the Norwegian campaign," The News Chronicle said editorially. "But we still do not know definitely when the statement will be made.

"That is not good enough. The course of events in Norway has created a good deal of uneasiness in this country, uneasiness about whether we are being sufficiently energetic and resolute in all our efforts and uneasiness about the government's determination to carry the operations through to a successful end in spite of difficulties.

WANT FACTS GIVEN

"Mr. Chamberlain should reassure the nation. He should make it clear beyond all doubt that the Allies recognize the Norwegian theatre of war for the vital theatre it is.

"At the same time the Prime Minister should give us a little more information about the operations in Norway during the last three weeks. Since Mr. Churchill's interim report we have had no substantial account of the course of events. At first secrecy may have been necessary but now, that the Nazis know just where our troops are and what they are doing, the need for much secrecy is past. Let the nation be given the facts."

The Daily Mirror pressed the government to disclose officially who was commanding the British troops in Norway.

"We are not giving away a secret when we say, or infer, or suggest that the war moves in mysterious ways," the Daily Mirror said. "Secrecy is inevitable. Big events may or may not happen. We shall hear about those that take place when it is good for us to hear.

PUZZLING PUBLIC

"But one event is puzzling the public. Who is in command of our boys in Norway? There is no official statement. It is vaguely assumed that the commander in chief of the Norwegian expeditionary force is General Carton de Wiart, V.C. Is there any reason why the public should not know if this is so?"

(Major-General Adrian Carton de Wiart, 60-year-old veteran of two wars, has been reported commanding British forces in Central Norway.)

"What is the position in Norway?" asked the Daily Express. "British troops have suffered a reverse. In the opinion of military experts we must be prepared for news of further reverses. Why? Because the Germans still have control of the air.

"The whole situation would be altered if the air fields could be captured for the Royal Air Force in Norway. So far there have been few signs of our deficiency in the air being remedied. Yesterday German bombers again ploughed paths of ruin and destruction through towns held by British forces.

NEWS IS CONFLICTING

"The public has been perplexed by conflicting statements and now asks for a plain statement by the prime minister. Remember if there is to be bad news, the British public will not be dismayed or disheartened.

"A withdrawal from central Norway would not be as great a disaster as the retreat from Mons during the last war. And what happened after the retreat from Mons? The people of this country set out with fresh energy and fresh determination to wrest from her enemies the final victory."

"Every official bulletin from both sides in Norway stressed the importance of the air weapon," said the Daily Mail. "They speak of continual intense bombing which overshadows other forms of military activity.

"What is the greatest menace to our troop concentrations? Bombers.

"What has reduced Namsos to rubble? Bombers.

"In the fires of war, theories are tested. Amid its quick changing scenes opinions are soon forgotten. A fortnight ago the smashing success of the British navy, in spite of attacks of the German air force, were blinding people to the deadly nature of the bomber. Some influential circles were even saying that Hitler in relying upon the war plane was leaning on a broken reed. Some newspapers again are decrying the effect of the air weapon.

"The cry from all sides is for increased production of our factories—for purchases and yet bigger purchases from the United States."

FIRST EMPIRE AIR TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS

169 Aspiring Airmen Open Classes On Monday At Eastern Centre

TORONTO, April 30. — Called the most extensive scheme in aviation history, the British Commonwealth Air Training plan began Monday when 169 aspiring airmen leaped from motor truck to enter No. 1 initial training school.

Into the long, low buildings of what was once Eglinton Hunt Club, the young Canadians went for a month's work preliminary to specialized training as pilots, air gunners and air observers. After an address by Wing Commander G. S. O'Brien, officer commanding the school, they began lectures immediately.

FAST PREPARATIONS

There has been speed all through the preparations for the opening of this school, which one day will be one of 70 of various types in the Dominion turning out blue-clad fighting men for the air arm of the Allied forces.

Yesterday, despite the hurried preparations, the interior of the school glistened in a scheme of red, white and blue. The airmen ate in a long dining room a luncheon prepared in a massive spotless kitchen fitted with modern equipment and manned by expert cooks.

In the Coliseum where once Canada's finest show horses paraded for society, the young men lined up to receive bedding, notebooks and other equipment. Among them were university graduates, insurance salesmen, printers and brokers' clerks. Few were unemployed when they applied for admission to the Royal Canadian Air Force.

WORK, RECREATION

They will make their own beds and do an hour's "fatigue duty" each morning. Their lectures include everything from hygiene to work in the link trainer, a machine designed to give tyro pilots the effect and conditions of flying without leaving the ground.

For recreation, there are bowling alleys and the Hunt Club's luxurious swimming pool. Nearby is a park where team games will be played.

There was a gleam in the eye of Wing Commander O'Brian as he watched while the trucks dislodged their eager humanity. Corporal Joseph Tombs, who won the Victoria Cross in the mud at Passchendaele, looked on in wonder after leading newspapermen to the commanding officer's quarters.

"This war," he said, "isn't like the last one at all."

27 French-Owned Barges, Tugs Quit Service On Danube

BUCHAREST, April 30. — The Allied campaign to cripple Germany's Danube trade was advanced a step further today when 27 French-owned barges and tugs left the river en route to Istanbul.

More than 300 barges and tugs leased or purchased by Allied agents during the winter to keep them out of the Nazi service were reported sent to Istanbul in recent weeks.

Aid For Refugees

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The American Red Cross cabled $10,000 to the Swedish Red Cross today for relief of Norwegian refugees in Sweden.

GUERRILLAS ARE NOW EFFECTIVE AGAINST NAZIS

British United Press

STOCKHOLM, April 30—The Norwegian author, Helge Krog, who arrived in Stockholm from the Dombas area, told the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter in an interview that Norwegian troops are becoming increasingly effective in guerrilla activities against the Germans. One guerrilla party, he said, captured a German raiding party, and others mopped up German parachute troops.

Krog said that the Norwegians claimed to have shot down 20 German planes in the Dombas area and that one of these had been brought down by a locomotive engineer, defending his train with a rifle.

Fifty bodies the size of the moon would be required to form one mass as large as the earth.

War Financing Will Occupy Government At Coming Session

OTTAWA, April 30.—With the cost of Canada's war effort for the present fiscal year estimated by the finance minister, Hon J. L. Ralston, at a minimum of $500,000,000 and the ordinary cost of running the country at possibly another $500,000,000, an important part of the government's program when it meets parliament next month will be financial.

Strenuous efforts are being made to reduce the estimates on ordinary expenditures. When the last parliament met on Jan. 25, estimates were ready, but dissolution of parliament gave an opportunity to reconsider them. The treasury board, headed by the finance minister, and a ministerial committee have been seeking to pare estimates for normal expenditures.

Meanwhile plans are well advanced, finance officials state, for the savings certificates by which the government hopes to some extent to finance the war, although officials emphasize these will not do away with the need for further war loans. No new loans are planned immediately, however.

NO NEW LOAN PLANNED

In a formal press statement, Col. Ralston last night said "there is absolutely no foundation whatever" for reports that preparations were being made for a new Dominion loan to be offered about the middle of May.

He said the only project of Dominion government financing which was contemplated in the near future was the issue of the war savings certificates.

These will be somewhat along the lines of war savings certificates being issued in the United Kingdom now and issued in Canada during the last war. They also will be somewhat similar to baby bonds in the United States.

Details of the war certificates probably will be laid before parliament shortly after it meets on May 16 and they likely will be offered to the public soon after that. Saving stamps were sold in the last war at all the post offices and could be bought for a low as 25 cents. When they had enough such stamps, holders could turn them in for certificates. This did not prove economical so it is understood this time there will be no stamps.

SMALL DENOMINATIONS

An investor will be able to buy a war savings certificate for as low as $5, it is expected, paying something more than $4 for it and at the end of five or 10 years he will get back the face value. Finance officials do not expect interest will be paid annually on these certificates, because of the cumbersome machinery necessary to operate such a plan. But the holder will have the choice of dates when he may turn in his certificates.

There may be interim dates when the certificate can be turned into cash at less than the face value if the holder does not want to wait until the full term is completed.

The certificates will enable savings by persons of modest means and are designed to promote thrift at this time.

Cutting down estimates for normal functions of government will reduce votes for many peacetime activities with the result smaller staffs will be needed to administer them. In order to shift civil servants from normal undertakings to war departments a committee headed by G. D. Finlayson, superintendent of insurance, is working with the deputy heads of the different departments.

CABINET MEETS TODAY

The transport minister, Hon. C. D. Howe, trade minister W. D. Euler and Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, returned to Ottawa yesterday after short holidays. Mr. Lapointe was removed to hospital suffering a cold which is expected to keep him confined for several days.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King is expected to return Wednesday or Thursday. In the meantime a meeting of the cabinet has been called for today.

NEW SWEDISH DEFENCE LOAN GROWING FAST

Subscriptions Pile Up As Country Prepares For Possible Invasion

By ELMER W. PETERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, April 30—Pneumatic drills chattering like machine-guns hammered air raid shelters out of solid rock—perhaps the most substantial affairs of their kind ever fashioned—as Sweden gave new evidence yesterday of her determination to fight if necessary by heaping up subscriptions to a new defence loan.

Stockholm's air raid shelters are in startling contrast to those I saw in the Poles three up in Warsaw.

Instead of shallow trenches in parks the Swedes have sunk concrete shelters reinforced with tubing and covered over with rocks blasted from the excavations.

It was announced officially German-Swedish trade discussions had been completed here but that they were to be continued in Berlin on the basis of agreements inus far reached.

Shipping of iron ore down the gulf of Bothnia is expected to begin shortly now since the ice is breaking up. The route across Norway and through the North sea, however, has been closed by the warfare at Narvik.

Following Monday's example of King Gustaf and the Royal family the Swedish public rushed to subscribe to a new defence loan of 500,000,000 kroner (about $118,500,000).

Indications were the new loan, gigantic in size for Sweden, would be subscribed fully in short order.

The King subscribed 750,000 kroner and Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf and his son, Prince Gustaf Adolf, each took up 50,000 kroner of the new issue.

U. S. SKIPPER REFUTES CLAIM BY RIBBENTROP

NEW YORK, April 30.—Captain William A. McHale, who brought the United States freighter Mormacsea safely to New York last week after viewing the German invasion of Trondheim, Norway, disputed yesterday German contentions that Nazi troops did not sail for Norway until April 8.

Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, made public in Berlin Saturday documents purporting to show that the German invasion was begun only to head off an earlier invasion which he claimed was being prepared by the Allies.

"I photographed the German auxiliary Seattle in Trondheim fjord April 7 at two in the afternoon," said Captain McHale. "She was headed south toward Bergen and rode high out of the water as though she had little cargo. She would not have been returning to Germany empty.

"There can be no doubt that she carried troops. She was idling along apparently waiting orders."

Coal Branch Man Found Unconscious With Leg Broken

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

EDSON, April 30.—Found by passersby late Saturday evening in an unconscious condition on a railway bridge near Robb on the coal branch, Joseph Campbell, of Robb, had his left leg broken between the knee and ankle and to be suffering from severe concussion. It is presumed that he stepped into the space between two bridge ties in the darkness, and, in falling heavily, fractured the leg and struck his head on a rail. Brought to Edson Sunday he was placed in St. John's hospital for treatment.

Seeding Varies In Saskatchewan Wheat Districts

REGINA, April 30.—The amount of wheat seeding completed varies widely in different parts of Saskatchewan according to reports received over the week-end by the statistics branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

East central Saskatchewan, where the land dried rapidly, is the furthest advanced with about 60 per cent completed and about 30 per cent of the wheat acreage has been sown in north eastern Saskatchewan. In other districts the amount is very small, not exceeding 50 per cent in any district.

SWASTIKA PUT ON TOWN HALL CAUSES FURORE

Police Investigation Is Demanded By Castor Town Council

CASTOR, April 30—The Castor town council, supported by branches of the Canadian Legion and Canadian Red Cross society here, last night demanded a full police investigation into appearance of a giant Swastika banner atop the town hall flag pole Monday morning.

Castor citizens hauled the Nazi emblem down. It had apparently been run to the top of the mast sometime between 1 a.m. and daybreak.

Mayor C. Barnes was authorized to ask for the investigation. It was not just the work of pranksters, those at the meeting declared as they examined the flag. The Swastika, sewn carefully on a bed sheet, was about four feet across.

There was a large alien population in the district, Mayor Barnes said.

Efforts to have the R. C. M. P. constable at Coronation, the only one in the district, probe the affair were unsuccessful yesterday as the constable was away on other duties. The Swastika banner was locked in a vault last night to await investigation.

AXIS PRESSING YUGOSLAVIA TO IGNORE RUSSIA

BELGRADE, April 30.—Germany and Italy are exerting pressure on Yugoslavia not to become too friendly with Soviet Russia, sources close to the government declared Monday.

While the Yugoslav foreign office denied categorically Italian and German allegations that anti-German and anti-Italian leaflets had been distributed in Ljubljana, diplomatic sources expressed the belief the axis powers made a fuss over the alleged incident to warn Yugoslavia of the danger of pushing their new friendship with Russia too far.

Il Giornale D'Italia, influential Fascist newspaper in Rome, published a dispatch from Ljubljana on Friday saying leaflets had been circulated demanding the return to Yugoslavia of Trieste and the coastline of Istria, both belonging to Italy, and Carinthia, now a part of Germany.

The Yugoslav trade delegation now is in Moscow negotiating for the first trade accord between Russia and Yugoslavia since the first Great War.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—A republican keynote address approving many new deal objectives, but urging substantial changes in the relief, farm and other programs was predicted by republican leaders after a series of conferences today with governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota, who will deliver the speech.

Fire Extinguished In Steamer's Holds

VICTORIA, April 30.—Fire in the cotton cargo of the Panamanian motorship Nordal, enroute to Japan from Vancouver, was brought under control by city fire department tugs today to allow discharge of the damaged cargo. About 4,000 bales of cotton were removed from the holds and authorities said the ship would resume her journey to Japan on Wednesday.

Farce Trawlers Flying New Flag

LONDON, April 30.— Trawlers from the Faroe Islands Monday flew for the first time their new national flag, a red cross with a white and blue border on a white field. Before Germany's invasion of Denmark the Faroe fishing fleet flew the Danish flag.

Canada's Foreign Trade Surmounting Wartime Barriers

OTTAWA, April 30.—Stimulated by growing demands of the United Kingdom market, Canada's foreign trade shows broad signs of surmounting wartime barriers.

Statistics issued by the trade and commerce department show a favorable balance of trade for January and February with value of exports exceeding imports by $21,022,210. Exports were worth $163,167,908 and imports $142,145,698.

In the same months of 1939 the favorable trade balance was $44,939,785 but exports were worth only $129,092,703 against imports of $84,122,918.

U.K. BEST CUSTOMER

The United Kingdom remains Canada's best customer. Spread of the war in recent weeks has cut off additional sources of supply for Great Britain and Canada may send even more goods.

In January and February the United Kingdom bought $69,243,385 worth of goods compared with $48,329,267 in the corresponding two months of 1939. In the period, Canada bought $10,468,346 worth of British goods, leaving a surplus of Canadian exports over imports of some $49,871,043 compared with an surplus of $34,120,727 for the first two months of the preceding year.

Canada's imports from all countries in the period amounted to $142,145,698, of which the greater part came from the United States. Canadian purchases in the United States in the two months aggregated $80,604,719 and exports to that country were $53,708,132, with the surplus of imports over exports standing at $43,076,722, compared with a surplus of $9,624,057 for the first two months of 1939.

EXPORTS DOUBLED

Majority of Canadian exports to Great Britain in January and February were agricultural and vegetable products, which nearly doubled compared with last year. Total exports of such commodities to the United Kingdom amounted to $25,302,135 compared with $13,427,127 in the first two months of 1939.

Wheat exports to Great Britain more than doubled in the two months under review at $12,678,-110 worth compared with $5,435,-965. Wheat shipped to Eire was valued at $745,139 compared with $276,045. The United States, too, purchased more Canadian wheat, buying $435,653 worth compared with $15,571.

Canada sold $3,548,309 worth of wheat flour to the United Kingdom compared with $1,204,348 in the first two months of 1939, and $1,-108,246 in oatmeal and rolled oats compared with $486,964. Sales of cereal foods to the British more than tripled at $911,249 compared with $274,436.

PORK MOVES STEADILY

Bacon and ham from Canada moved steadily in accordance with an agreement with the British government. Exports for the two months totalled $9,537,167 in value compared with $4,611,085 in the corresponding two months of the preceding year.

Canned meat exports to Britain jumped sharply at $453,327 compared with $71,314. Honey totalled $204,052 compared with $47,842, and canned herring amounted to $378,-332 compared with none at all in 1939.

Cheese exports showed one of the sharpest increases, at $995,-325 compared with $166,515. Butter, on the other hand, fell drastically at $248 worth compared with $733,309 for the same two months in 1939.

Fresh apples dropped because the war has interfered with space for such bulky commodities. Total exported to the United Kingdom in the two months was $360,488 worth compared with $2,136,342, but the British did buy canned apples to the extent of $426,776 compared with $88,741. Tomato juice exports jumped to $297,739 compared with $4,315.

Bleached wood pulp from Canada found favor on the British market with exports worth $461,646 compared with only $61,530 in the same two months last year. Veneers and sawn woods jumped to $453,963 compared with $178,906, and planks and boards of douglas fir totalled $2,426,650 compared with $1,624,350.

CROIL ADVISES AGAINST LEAVING JOBS TOO SOON

OTTAWA, April 30—Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croil, chief of air staff, last night expressed regret that many young men anxious to join the Royal Canadian Air Force had thrown up their civil occupations in their enthusiasm to enlist.

Returning to Ottawa from an inspection tour to the Pacific coast, he said in a press statement that everyone submitting an application to the air force is urged to take no such action until actually called up.

"We cannot expand more rapidly than is scheduled in the joint air training plan, because the rate of development of the training facilities is based on this time table," he continued.

"Although the country will need these fine young men in due course, they should bide their time and wait until we send for them. In the meantime, they can submit their applications, be medically examined and take all the required preliminary steps towards enlistment."

HON. WILLIAM ABERHART
Premier of Alberta

PREMIER ABERHART SAYS:

"Alberta Pledges Resources"

"Rich beyond compare in grains and foodstuffs from her vast expanses of farm lands and ranches, high grade crude oil from her prolific fourfield structures, sugar from the South, salt from the North, unlimited coal supplies, and inexhaustible products of the forest, Alberta pledges all her resources to the cause of Canada, the British Empire and our Allies in this struggle for Democracy against aggressive dictatorship, and all the crimes it has committed and the evil policies sponsored by this Hitlerism. The Prairies can fill Great Britain's larders to overflowing while starvation besets our enemies, and Alberta will do her share. While Germany's finances wane steadily, Alberta, by attracting foreign tourists to our National Parks, will help to improve Canada's foreign exchange position.

"The People and the Government of Alberta will leave no stone unturned and no effort will be spared to support, actively, the Motherland and bring a victorious conclusion this conflict against pagan barbarism."

(Signed) WILLIAM ABERHART, Premier.

WITH over 700,000 people, producing $500,000,000 of wealth every year from agriculture, livestock, mining, trapping, fisheries, manufacturing, exporting some 7,000,000 tons of their products, with some 60,000 miles of roads, 100,000 registrations of cars — passenger, truck and farm equipment, and we would say Alberta for "oops."

But in addition to all these riches — these grain fields, these immense flocks and herds, these mines and plants — the Turner Valley Oil Fields, estimated to be the largest in the British Empire, have been discovered.

And now the news comes of the opening of the Jasper-Banff highway in the early spring. The wonders of this amazing road will attract even greater numbers of tourists from all parts of the country and the United States, and Alberta will increase her already enormous traffic in the automobiles of visitors.

BUILDING CANADIAN MOTOR CARS IS A NATIONAL WAR INDUSTRY

The establishment of Canada's Automotive Industry has resulted in the creation of a home market of inestimable value to each and every one of the Provinces. The interchange of goods and money can be appreciated when one remembers that this industry alone spends in the Dominion every year on an average of $130,000,000 which finds its way to every part of Canada. In turn, Canadians purchase Canadian-built cars, thus keeping money in Canada and helping employment.

No dollar stays where it is made but is distributed gradually to the most remote part of the Dominion. The Automotive Industry is National in purpose and National in scope. When you buy a Canadian-built car, you help your own Province as well as Canada as a whole.

Under Way

The Commonwealth Air Training Scheme has passed the organization stage. Cadets who hope to become pilots, observers and gunners started work at the elementary school at Toronto on Monday. Other schools will open across the Dominion as buildings and grounds are got ready and teaching staffs assembled, secondary schools being timed to open as graduates emerge from the elementary schools.

While three years may be required before the system reaches its maximum, the end of the present year should see a steady and ever-growing "stream" of thoroughly trained flying men leaving the schools and proceeding oversea as they are needed.

If anyone is inclined to be impatient at the progress made in bringing the training scheme into operation, he should reflect that a year ago no such plan had been framed, or apparently thought of. The preliminary arrangements have been got through in eight months, surely not a bad rate of progress for an enterprise of the kind—emphatically not when it is remembered that purchase of training machines had to take second place to the urgent need of planes and more planes to make up the shortage of the Allied forces.

Too Much Pork

To maintain a nice balance between supply and demand is not an easy task. Ottawa reports that the Bacon Board has 30,000,000 pounds of pork products on hand, despite the regular shipment of the stipulated amounts to Britain under the bacon agreement. The situation came about because farmers delivered more hogs to the packing plants than expected. The stoppage of Danish supplies did not mend matters, because Britain had a good stock on hand and has not increased its orders. The prospect is said to be that the surplus will grow instead of getting smaller, and it is proposed to start a publicity campaign to get Canadian consumers to eat more pork.

Whatever expedients have to be adopted to restore equilibrium, the difficulty is in itself a matter for satisfaction. A surplus of any prime food commodity in war-time is something to be thankful for; too often the predicament is of the contrary kind. So far as information goes, the enemy is not troubled about having too much to eat; nor were the Allies confronted by any such condition during the former Great War. That Britain and France, and their fighting forces, have all the bacon and other pork products they require is good news.

As for the surplus, that may be quickly disposed of. A good many Canadian consumers have been going easy on bacon, fearing it might be needed oversea. Assured of the contrary, they will probably help themselves more freely, and the piles in the warehouses will dwindle accordingly.

What Young Folks Can Do

The Boys' and Girls' Fair, which is being held this week in the buildings of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. deserves a generous measure of popular support. The object is worthy of encouragement, and past events give assurance that those who attend will find plenty to interest and entertain them.

This is the seventeenth consecutive year in which a Fair has been held. These fetes are planned, arranged and carried through by young people for young people. They aim to encourage boys and girls to have hobbies, to take interest in them, and to do their best in whatever lines of constructive enterprise faney may lead. The exhibits always include some remarkably fine specimens of youthful handicraft; and thus indicate special aptitudes for life occupations.

The boys and girls who organized the Fair seventeen years ago, and their successors for several years, are now men and women, helping to do the world's work. Each year a number of those actively interested in the Fair reach the 21-year limit and pass out of the ranks. But these losses are made up by young recruits, and the Fair goes on; proving that its appeal is perennial and that the impulse to excel is as strong as ever in the mind of Young Edmonton.

Violence and destruction are crashing across the world today, and the echoes are beating ceaselessly upon young lives and old. Whatever in such times may turn the thoughts of youth to constructive ideas and ideals is particularly worthy of approval and help. That is the definite purpose, and the certain result, of the annual Fair.

Patriotism a Crime

Herr Hitler has finally declared war against Norway. He thereby abandons the pretence that he sent his army into the country on a peaceful mission, and with the tacit approval of its people. Norway, as Count Von Ribbentrop explained and Herr Hitler has now confirmed, did not want his "protection". His troops went these as invaders and nothing else, to take possession of the country—by bribery and intimidation if that were possible, but by war if this were not possible.

Norway is said to be the first country against which the Fuehrer has declared war. It takes an expert to decide what constitutes a declaration of war by a predatory power, and it is agreed that nothing has been done which can be so construed in regard to the Reich' attitude toward Britain and France. There was of course nothing that could be interpreted as a declaration against Austria, Czechoslovakia or Poland. These countries were just "raided" and annexed—whatever the distinction amounts to.

It at least amounts to this; that having declared war Germany will have to abide by the accepted rules of war or incur the automatic condemnation of every country that has subscribed to these conventions, written or established by common consent and practice. As war was not declared against Poland, a poor excuse might be made that the wholesale bombing of civilian populations there did not constitute breaches of these rules. There can be no such shadow of excuse if Nazi airmen do in Norway what they did in Poland. Having "regularized" its hostile operations there, Germany must either obey the law or admit outlawry before the court of world opinion.

The reason for the declaration being made is plainly stated to be that Norway "created a state of war by resisting Germany". That disposes of puppet Quisling and the pretence that he, and not their duly constituted Government, represented the wishes of the people of Norway. It dismisses also the pretence that it was the Allies, and not Norway, the German forces were sent to fight. The offence of the Norwegians was that they "resisted" the invaders. For that, war is to be waged against them. Patriotism is formally declared to be a crime on the part of any people whose country Hitler may want to take into his possession. The Fuehrer himself has said so.

Sir Samuel Hoare says Von Ribbentrop told a "despicable lie" when he said the Allies planned to occupy Norway. It was also a rather transparent one, for if the Allies wanted to land an army there they could have done it weeks ago. The regret is that they didn't do it.

The Passing Show

By MAX FREEDMAN

Heinrich Himmler, the dreaded chief of the Gestapo, looks more like a quiet scholar than a ruthless despot. He speaks in a level, even voice that never becomes vibrant with passion even in moments of crisis. Behind heavy spectacles gleam intelligent eyes in which the spark of fanaticism is absent. No one would tell from looking at him that this man has built up the fiercest torture machine of which history has any record. He is pitiless as vengeance itself, yet, withal, has a strange reluctance to capture the spotlight. While Goering and Von Ribbentrop posture and parade, Himmler, who has more real power than anyone in the Reich except Hitler, is content to work in silence, without applause and without bravado. He wants the realities, not the trappings, of power. Since the Nazi revolution, Himmler has made less than a dozen important speeches. His picture rarely appears in the German press. His secrecy is almost as great as his cruelty.

SOME FACTS ON HIMMLER

His ascendancy dates from the brutal purge on June 30, 1934, when Hitler ordered Goering and Himmler to carry out a pitiless campaign of extermination against leading Nazi officials. Himmler proved, after this grim task was ended, that many of the victims had been duping Goering and working in close concert with some of Hitler's most trusted lieutenants. His knowledge of party corruption was so extensive that other leaders quailed at the ordeal of challenging his accusations and disclosures, and Hitler promoted this stool-pigeon to a position of unique authority.

Significantly enough, Himmler did not pause until he had obtained control of police activities in Prussia, until then the domain in which Goering ruled supreme. That showed the world that the ghastly thing that was to be law throughout the whole Reich.

Concentration camps, it may be added, were first conceived by Goering, but they were brought to such a pitch of sinister perfection by Himmler that they will always be linked with his infamous name.

* * *

Only 40 years old, Himmler, who first won Hitler's respect in 1927 by organizing his special bodyguard which is made up of Aryans whose Germanic descent dates back to 1750, has what is reputed to be the most elaborate filing system in the world. There is information on every leader, and almost every official, of the Nazi party. This forms the basis for Gestapo action. Many times Nazi officials who are reluctant to carry out Himmler's brutal orders—they are sometimes too brutal even for them—are made to do so on penalty of going to concentration camp themselves, if this secret data is exposed to Hitler's glance. Thus, by secret hold upon terror, Himmler has forged the Gestapo into a blind and brutal instrument for mass persecution.

HIS METHOD OF OPERATIONS

The Gestapo, under Himmler's control and guidance, has so much authority that it can arrest a person, no matter how innocent, without warrant and send him to a concentration camp without trial. Worse still, it can do exactly the same thing to anyone found innocent after a fair trial. Pastor Niemoller, for example, was acquitted by a German court; upon leaving the courtroom, he was re-arrested by Gestapo agents and taken to a concentration camp where his martyrdom has evoked the sympathy and admiration of all just peoples.

All the Gestapo has to do to send anyone to a concentration camp, is accuse him of a political crime, or declare his freedom to be prejudicial to the state. Himmler's accusation is equivalent to sentence. There is no trial, no justice, no mercy and no reprieve.

It is no wonder that Mr. Chamberlain has said the destruction of the Gestapo is one of the war aims of the Allies.

* * *

Rudolph Hess, deputy Fuehrer and Nazi No. 3 in Germany, forms a striking contrast to Himmler. Hess is Hitler's creature. Since the early days of the Nazi movement, he has been his follower. When Hitler went to jail after the Munich revolt, Hess also was arrested, and helped him write Mein Kampf. Then he became private secretary and personal bodyguard to Hitler.

A CONTRAST BETWEEN MEN

Though Himmler's death-head troopers have taken this last point away from Hess, the deputy leader has frequently said he approved of this action and respects Himmler for his devotion to Hitler.

Goering, in his autobiography, pours flattery on Hitler with copious hand, and Himmler is not above doing so also, to serve his own ends. But Hess is a hero-worshipper. He actually seems to mean what he says about Hitler.

It would be worth a small ransom to hear what the crafty, calculating Himmler really thinks about the naïsh Hess. If a revolt ever takes place against Hitler within the Nazi party, it's a safe bet that Himmler will crush Hess, like one splinters an eggshell, and then grapple with Goering for mastery of the party crown.

* * *

Sir Nevile Henderson was disgusted by Himmler. Recalling that Himmler's S. S. troops wear black shirts and guard Hitler, Sir Nevile remarks that they may therefore be called "blackguards," spelled, as you walk, as one or two words. He is confident that the Gestapo not only poisoned life within Germany but also made possible Nazi aggression in Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland. Since his book on his diplomatic mission to Germany was published, new evidence has come from recent events in Norway to show how Himmler's hand paved the way for the Nazi invasion.

BRITISH VIEW OF HIMMLER

Those who knôw how efficiently Himmler worked in Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, feel his hand has lost none of its cunning in Norway. He is one of the supreme menaces to peace and freedom.

The inter-American order was not built by hatred and terror. It has been paved by the endless and effective work of men of good will. —President Roosevelt on Pan American Day.

Canada Fills the Pantry

In spite of the extra acres which are being ploughed here, we must still depend very largely indeed on overseas supplies, and at this time of the year it is usual to make an estimate of the crops. The Argentine has had excessive rains and frosts just when they could do most harm; since 1916 their crop has only on two other occasions been so small. In the United States a large part of the crop was spoiled by drought lasting for months all over the winter wheat belt, and their anticipated yield is one of the smallest in this century. On the other hand, prospects in Canada are excellent and there is a good deal left over from the 1939 crop, so that the season during which the St. Lawrence is free of ice will see enormous quantities brought across under safe convoy.—London Evening News.

Stalin and Hitler

The war in Finland is today nothing but a page in history. Molotov and Mannerheim have been counting up the score.

The Soviet minister says the Russian dead were 48,645, with 158,863 wounded. He says Finns lost 60,000 killed and 250,000 wounded. Mannerheim tells a different story. He gives the total killed as 200,000 Russians and 15,000 of his own people, with 600,000 wounded Russians. Sweden scans the blood-stained ledgers and says that Russian casualties were half a million men.

Nobody knows whose figures are correct. They only see the stark tragedy of the figures and the misery of war.

Spring is beginning to come again to the lake country of the Northern lands. The tundras will shyly put on their coats of rich green and the row on row of dead will begin to return to the dust whence they came. Yet each of the men, every sacrifice to the god of war, was a living being who walked and loved and laughed, subject to like passions as we ourselves.

Many mothers are weeping for their sons, lovers for their sweethearts, children for their fathers.

Two tyrants sent all these men to their death to satisfy their blood lust and their pride—two swaggering braggarts who counted the mad fantasies of their diseased brains of more worth than the lives of thousands of their fellowmen. —Vancouver News-Herald.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

The cynic who created the phrase that "England always lost every battle but the last" did not know his Canadian history, because, as a matter of fact, the British lost the last battle with the French in 1760 and, but for the coming of a British fleet, would have been in a perilous state indeed.

The garrison had been besieged in Quebec all through the winter of 1759. Murray never lost hope, being confident that when the St. Lawrence, closed by ice, opened then the British warships of His Majesty's ships would arrive and end all hope of French success; but it was a testing time that tried every fibre of his Highlanders and the English and Irish troops under his command. Day followed day. He noted that the enemy would not attack again before the fleet came; but at the end of April he received word that the gallant DeLevis was on his way down from Montreal to make an attempt to revenge his defeat on the battle of the Plains in September, 1759.

That expedition from Montreal, along rough roads and a river choking with floating ice, was a remarkable achievement and deserves more praise than it has ever got to it. It reached Quebec on March 27, and on the 28th DeLevis attacked at Ste. Foye (the "second battle of the Plains"). Murray had barely 3,000 men; DeLevis' force was nearly 10,000; yet Murray accepted the challenge and went forth from Quebec to make battle.

Murray's defeat was overwhelming. He had to retreat into the city with the loss of 1,100 men and, healing the wounded, resume the defence. Well might DeLevis rejoice that the tables had been turned and boast that the re-capture of Quebec was but a matter of weeks, perhaps days; but he did not reckon with time, the disappearance of the ice and the appearance around the Island of Orleans of the white ensign which told him that his dream was ended. The British navy had arrived; all hopes of victory for France were ended. He had to retire again to Montreal, where, the following September, on the orders of Governor Vaudreuil, he surrendered Canada with a battle, recognizing that he was circled by three British armies, and so no decisive battle was fought at Montreal. Ste. Foy was the last; it was a British defeat; and that is why, 180 years ago today, General Murray was a prisoner inside Quebec; having lost the last battle with the French to DeLevis.

THE ROCK MAN

Two hundred neighbors were gathered to do honor, by a testimonial dinner, to a friend who is having hard times. Many tributes were paid to his qualities—tributes which a million dollars could not buy.

Outstanding in the dozen short addresses was the note of appreciation of the guest's steadfastness. He is a man who has always stood strong and steady for his convictions. Everybody knew where to find him. His virtue is that of the oak or of the great rock.

At the end of life, there is no quality more greatly prized than this one of having stood fast for the best things. On such men society is built. Not the brilliant men, not the rich men, not the conspicuous men, but the sterling characters who have stood unshakeably for righteousness are the dependence of God and man.

I may not be great. I may not have special ability, but at least, having done all, I can stand, unchanged by veering winds.

Our Father, Thou knowest that we deeply desire to be true friends of Thine, and of Thy world. So we pray for the grace of constancy, that in spite of all, and after all, we may stand fast. Amen.

Side Glances — By Galbraith

"Drive easy folks—ladies value a new spring hat more than their lives."

McCoy Health Service

The fluoroscopic examination, given to the patient while he is in a standing position, offers the best way to find adhesions. It is not possible to see adhesions, but they may be located by one trained to look for them who uses the fingertips to move the lower abdominal organs. When the examining physician finds a spot, the colon which is so fixed or tight that he is unable to carry it through its normal range of movement, he knows that he has located the adhesions.

Intestinal adhesions are common, found in the lower right hand side and the patient may discover them for himself by using the fingers and trying to reach in and move the parts.

A method was worked out in my office for breaking down adhesions discoverable by the fluoroscopic examination. This method has been used with great success, and consists essentially of a deep manipulation. The bloodless surgeon following this method will be able to separate the organs grown together by adhesions without cutting into the abdominal wall. Considerable skill and training are needed to bring about the right effect and the treatments must be continued for at least several weeks and possibly for several months.

While the treatment is being used, the patient should be examined again with the fluoroscope and such re-examination will clearly demonstrate the improvement taking place.

As the adhesions are banished the patient is often amazed to find that his chronic constipation and digestive troubles are banished along with them. For example, I have seen it happen many times that the patient who has suffered most of his life from constipation takes these treatments which free the colon and discovers that the colon begins to eliminate regularly. He finds the colon able to cleanse itself in a satisfactory manner without his having to give any attention to it.

Once the adhesions have been broken down the patient is ready to undertake treatment to restore the prolapsed organs to their normal positions. These sagging organs may be raised in several ways. One of the best methods to use is to take exercises while lying on the Slanting Board.

In a mild case of adhesions, the use of the Slanting Board alone will be sufficient to produce benefit, provided the exercises are taken for a sufficient length of time. Unfortunately, the average patient does not discover the adhesions until they are more severe, at which stage manipulative treatment such as I have described, is needed.

I am sure that those readers who have been told they have adhesions will be pleased to know they may be banished. For additional information send for my 2-page article on "Prolapsus and Adhesions" and also for the article on "The Slanting Board Exercises." McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

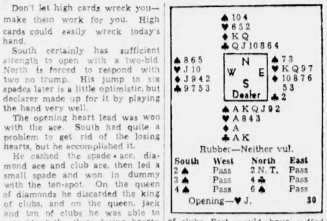

Don't let high cards wreck you—make them work for you. High cards could easily wreck today's hand.

South certainly has sufficient strength to open with a two-bid. North is forced to respond with two no trump. His jump to six spades later is a little optimistic, but declarer made up for it by playing the hand very well.

The opening heart lead was won with the ace. South had quite a problem to get rid of the losing hearts, but he accomplished it.

He cashed the spade and diamond ace and club ace, then led a small spade and won in dummy with the ten-spot. On the queen of diamonds he discarded the king of clubs, and on the queen Jack and ten of clubs he was able to get rid of the three losing hearts, making seven-odd.

Had South tried to cash his king of clubs, East would have ruffed and the contract would have been badly defeated.

Joan: "You've been typist to many men, haven't you?"

Dolly: "Yes, but I think I'm on my last lap now."

He had been fishing with no luck. On his way home he entered a fish market and accosted the clerk.

"John," he said, "just stand over at that side of the store and throw me five of your biggest trout."

"Throw them? What's the big idea?"

"Just so I can tell the family I caught them. I may be a poor fisherman, but I'm no liar."

A shy man who had fallen in love sought the girl's widowed mother to ask her consent. "Mrs. Desmond," he began in an agitated voice, "I have come to ask you for the blessed privilege of working for your dear daughter, taking care of her, giving her a home, and—" He got no farther. Eagerly the widow threw herself into his arms. "Oh, Herbert," she whispered, "I gladly grant you the privilege! You don't know how I have hoped and longed for a model man like you to be a father to my darling daughter!"

An Irishman wanted to take his donkey by train, so when he got to the station he asked where he should put it.

"At the back of the train," the station-master told him.

The Irishman then got into his carriage, and after about an hour's travelling he asked: "And how fast might we be goin' now?"

"About sixty miles an hour," he was told.

"Begorra," he exclaimed, "My Neddy must be steppin' out!"

Small Boy: "Mummy, I saw some numbers on a shop window today marked 'Impossible to beat.' Do you think you could persuade daddy to get them for me?"

GOLDFIELDS

LAST MAIL IS FLOWN BEFORE ICE BREAKUP

Flying May Resume May 20; Town Gets Summer Water Service

Piloting a plane from Prince Albert, Cecil McNeil pushed through to Goldfields Saturday with the final pre-breakup mail for the north and liquor for Yellowknife. This flight made through bad weather and over questionable ice is almost ten days later than from other points.

The plane was met at Goldfields by Jack Moar in a second C.A.L. plane who went north to Yellowknife with freight for that point. Should planes get into Yellowknife on floats as early as last year, May 5, this will certainly give the northern gold camp a short breakup. With the exception of a trip made by Walter Gilbert on April 26, 1936, the present flight into Goldfields is the latest on record for a ski-plane.

Aircraft on floats should be operating into Goldfields again by May 20.

Jim McAvoy, village overseer, and Jack Hammond, village secretary, have been busy all week pushing the local summer water works into service. By May 1 Goldfields residents will be drawing water from taps at their doors instead of carrying it from the bay.

Practically all the snow has left the hills and the ice has risen in Nyman's Bay. As usual the run-off has carried pollution and the water in the bay is not considered fit for drinking. The water system, consisting of more than 3,000 feet of pipelines, a 5,000-gallon tank and pumping station, draws water from Murmac Bay which is east of the village and does not get the drainage from the settlement. Residents pay $1 a month for water.

Earl Dafoe, C.M. & S. mine employee who suffered a fractured skull from a fall while at work in the Box Mine here, is reported recovering. Dafoe was working in one of the grizzlies when he slipped, striking the back of his head on a steel rail. He was taken to the C.M. & S. hospital and attended by Dr. McColl.

A number of miners employed locally left Goldfields for Yellowknife last week. The desire for a change which is prevalent in miners and the promise of higher wages were probably causes of the men going farther north. Among those going to Yellowknife were Harold Ketchum, Curly McDonald, Geo. Nesbit, Gil Hagen, Ted Lonergan, Jim Marshall, and Mr. Meyers. All were formerly employed by C.M. & S. at the Box Mine.

BAWLF

Organization To Help Norway Is Formed At Bawlf

At a meeting held at the Eggen and Kvellem offices for the purpose of organizing an "Association of War Relief to Scandinavians", Rev. K. A. Odland was elected president, Jacob Bones, vice president; K. O. Eggen, secretary-treasurer. The directors are H. Olson, M. O. Lokken, Clarence Hanson, Mrs. O. E. Oleaberg, Math Nordgaarde and Ole Lovrod. A committee was chosen to solicit funds.

On account of the impassable condition of the roads the Luther League rally scheduled for Sunday was indefinitely postponed. The Christian Service Young Peoples' group of the Lutheran College, Camrose, will assist with the services at the Bawlf Lutheran Church on Sunday evening, May 5.

Mr. Reynolds came to the district about 40 years ago from the United States. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. Reid of Clive and Mrs. W. Wagstaff of Trail, two sons, Jack and Ray, both of Clive, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Murrison, 84-year-old resident of Clive, were held in the Anglican Church, Rev. W. E. Herbert of Lacombe conducted the service. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. H. Northcott and Mrs. D. Wilson, both of Clive and a daughter in New Zealand.

ATHABASCA

FAST DIESEL TRAIN MAKES INITIAL RUN

New C.N.R. Service On Athabasca Line Welcomed By Towns

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

The Canadian National's new fast Diesel-electric train service on the Athabasca line completed its inaugural run Monday at 12:40 noon, right on time. The train was well filled with passengers when it arrived, having left Edmonton loaded to capacity.

The new fast train, which will make a daily return trip to the city from Athabasca in four hours' time each way, was brought from Montreal for this new service.

The train itself consists of two regular train coaches. The first is divided into three parts, one for the Diesel engine, one for express and mail, and the last for passengers. The second coach is divided into two, the first for passengers and the second for package freight. In all there is seating accommodation for 60 passengers.

CREW OF FOUR

It is operated by a crew of four: engineer, conductor, baggage-man and freight-man. It runs at a speed of 25 miles an hour or better, though these types of motors are capable of a speed of from 60 to 80 miles an hour. Operating on cheap fuel oil, the operating cost will be low, as on the 100-mile trip from Edmonton yesterday only 35 gallons of oil were required for the trip.

C.N. officials who came out on the first run included J. R. McMillan, assistant superintendent; W. G. McConachie, master mechanic; J. Kemp, chief in charge of diesel engines and C. L. Linsay, traveling baggage agent. The officials expressed entire satisfaction at the train's performance on its initial run.

Mr. McMillan said they hoped to keep the train in operation in winter but this would depend on public patronage.

CONDUCTOR PEARCE

Conductor Jim Pearce was heartily welcomed by everyone along the line. All had hoped that Jim would be conductor on the new train. It was conductor Jim Pearce who brought in the first passenger train to Athabasca in September 1912. He took the last mixed passenger off the line last Saturday. Now conductor Jim Pearce has brought the first diesel-electric motor train to Athabasca.

Welcome and congratulations on the first run were expressed to the C.N. officials by Mayor F. Mills of Athabasca and G. G. Fowler, president of the Athabasca and District board of trade. J. P. Evans and C. Conquest, town clerk and local editor, accompanied the welcoming party which was shown over the train.

PUPILS CHECKED AFTER THREAT SCARLET FEVER

Dr. C. L. Pearson of the Red Deer Health Unit examined all pupils in three rooms of the Lacombe school on Monday after a pupil in the high school had been quarantined for scarlet fever over the week-end. All of the pupils examined were found to be free from the disease and no quarantines were imposed on the school rooms.

James Shaw was re-elected president of the Lacombe Softball League at a meeting held here Sunday, when plans were made for a four-team league and a season that will run from May 2 until August 1. Other officers elected were: Bud Carter, vice-president; Harry Legall, secretary; Avery's, Jenkins', Experimental Farm Aggies and a team from the high school will make up the league.

The first run was expressed to the C.N. officials by Mayor F. Mills of Athabasca and G. G. Fowler, president of the Athabasca and District board of trade. J. P. Evans and C. Conquest, town clerk and local editor, accompanied the welcoming party which was shown over the train.

DRUMHELLER

George Murphy, of no fixed abode, suspected of being connected with the safe breaking at Della cooperative store a week ago, was remanded in custody Monday by Magistrate J. H. MacIntyre here on a charge of retaining stolen property. Murphy will appear again on Thursday. Police in the meantime are busy seeking new evidence on the break-in which resulted in the loss of $600 in grain money.

Murphy's companion, Ezra Wright, who was arrested with Murphy Saturday noon by R.C.M.P. Constable Peppe while the two were drinking beer in a local beer parlor, received a three-day sentence, dating back to the time of his arrest when he was placed in custody in a vagrancy charge. Wright was released Monday, police being apparently satisfied that he had struck up a chance acquaintanceship with Murphy in the beer parlor.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily to help digest and flow through your food. Does it? If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats you, you get constipated. Harmful poisons from this decaying food are absorbed into the blood and system.
A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that acts on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those 2 pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, but make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. Be sure!

For an informal wedding, the bride (right) chose a miniature straw sailor hat, covered with blue delphiniums. Her dress is of light blue silk faille, with a youthful swing skirt. It is topped by a short jacket, whose button detail is repeated in the circular yoke of the dress. The "garden" influence is seen in the hat of the bride's maid of honor (left) who wears Suzy's flowered boater. Her suit of navy silk faille shows the new "long torso" effect.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to be married to a girl who is very fine in every way but one, and that is that she doesn't like my family, without any reason at all, for they have tried to be very nice and cordial to her. She won't come to our house for a friendly visit, and if she has to be in their company she sits up as mum as a clam, refuses even to speak to them.

Lately we were at a dance and when my family came in, she left, which hurt my feelings and I rebrushed her with it. She just says that she can't help the way she feels, and that if I insist upon her associating with them she will give me up because she hates them so much. Shall I marry this girl in spite of her dislike for my family, hoping that in time she will get over her feeling about them? I love both her and my people. What shall I do? I am PUZZLED.

Answer:

Your fiancee's attitude toward your family is inspired by nothing but jealousy, and that is about the worst fault and the hardest one to live with that a wife can have. Just now she turns all of her venom on your father and mother, sisters and brothers because they are the ones nearest to you. But as soon as you are married she will broaden her field and include in her hatred all of your friends and acquaintances.

You will live in terror of the scenes she will make, and you will be fatally handicapped by the enmities she will provoke in the

Furthermore, your fiancee's conduct shows that she is extremely narrow-minded, because if she had any breadth of vision or any generosity of soul she would be bound to know that unless you were lacking in all decency of character you would love the mother who bore you, the father who cherished you, the brothers and sisters with whom you have grown up and have everything in common.

Also, your fiancee shows that she has not even good manners, or any social experience or tact, or else she would treat your family courteously, no matter what her feelings toward them are.

If you marry this girl, you may be very sure of one thing, and that is that she will never change.

NUT AND MEAT LOAF

(Serves 4 to 6)

One pound ground beef, ¾ pound ground veal, ½ pound ground pork, 1¼ teaspoons salt, 4 slices bread, 1 onion, cut fine; 1 egg, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 1 cup Brazil nuts, chopped.

Soak bread in water and press dry. Mix all ingredients together except the Brazil nuts. Divide mixture in half and shape into 2 flat topped loaves. Spread half of chopped Brazil nuts on one, cover with second loaf. Cover top with remaining chopped nuts. Arrange in baking dish or pan. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.), cover bottom of pan with water and bake additional hour.

A glass of milk and a cookie jar—when there are nuts in the cookies—will supply ample protein to this after-school snack. This Vermont recipe tastes good.

MAPLE NUT COOKIES

Three cups flour, sifted; 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups soft maple sugar, 2 eggs, beaten; 1 teaspoon soda, ½ cup hot water, 1¼ cups walnut meats, chopped; 1 cup dates, cut in pieces.

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt. Beat maple sugar into egg, stir in dry ingredients; add soda dissolved in hot water, nuts and dates. Drop from a teaspoon on baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 12 minutes.

All About Babies

By RICHARD ARTHUR BOLT
M. D., DR. P. H.
Secretary, Maternal and Child Health Section of American Public Health Association

Normal growth and development as mentioned in the previous article depends to a considerable extent upon a well-balanced, nutritious diet. Other factors condition the growth of the children, but the proper selection of food is of paramount importance. We now know much more about the right kinds of foods in the proper portions than is at present being put into practice. The problem is both economic and health educational.

Dr. Bolt

Children need a balanced diet—food in adequate quantity and of proper quality because it is necessary:

1. To supply building material for the tissues of the body.

2. To make up for the loss of wear and tear of the body.

3. To furnish sufficient energy for the body to perform its functions.

4. To supply certain protective and regulatory substances—the vitamins and mineral salts such as iron, iodine, calcium, phosphorus and other elements or other minerals.

5. To assist in the elimination of waste products.

• • •

In addition to these requirements the food for a child should be appetizing, attractive, diversified and given at regular periods in a calm, happy, home atmosphere. Good food habits are often formed in a jangling atmosphere.

There is general agreement that wholesome, clean, safe milk is the one most important element in a child's diet.

The chief sources of heat producing foods will be the starchy foods and the fats. Cereals form the most acceptable foods to supply energy and some of the essential minerals. Fats containing vitamin A may be given in the form of butter and cream.

Fruits are a desirable food to have in the dietary.

• • •

A wide variety of vegetables may be given according to the age of the child. A liberal amount of green leafy vegetables and the colored vegetables such as carrots, beets, sweet potatoes should be included.

The protein foods will be supplied by milk, eggs, lean meats, fish and cheese. Liver is a valuable food especially if the child is anemic.

A basic balanced dietary should include the following:

Milk—One quart a day in some form.

Vegetables — Green leafy, and colored vegetables, cooked or raw potatoes—Irish, sweet and yams, tomatoes.

Fruits—Fresh, cooked or canned. Oranges or grapefruit.

Cereals and Bread—At least one-half of bread and cereals used daily should be whole grain and dark breads.

Eggs—Three or four fresh eggs a week.

Meat, Fish, Cheese—Two to four servings a week.

Fats and Sugars—In addition to foods above but not to take their place, in the form of simple desserts.

DESIGN NO. 346—QUILTED APPLIQUE KNITTING BAG

A really handsome utility bag that will keep your knitting safe and sound, will accompany you to the shops, carry your sewing when you go to tea, hold no end of things when you go a-travelling and safeguard a multitude of odds and ends when you leave it at home. The applique design is bright-colored and easy to do. The flowers and leaves are small ends of grosgrain ribbon appliqued to the background with colorful threads. The quilting is part of the transfer and is also done with embroidery threads. A perfect gift and quite the handiest accessory to own.

The pattern contains transfer pattern for the bag, transfers of applique designs, instructions for quilting, embroidery, and applique as well as easy-to-understand instructions for making and finishing bag.

To order this pattern, write your name and address on a piece of paper and send with 15 cents in coin to Needlework Department, The Edmonton Bulletin, Edmonton, Alberta.

Overdone Makeup Is No Worse Than Underdone

By ALICIA HART

It's almost as bad to wear too little makeup as it is to wear too much. The washed-out look certainly is something to avoid.

The new trend toward naturalness is fine, of course, but it would be a mistake for any woman to stop using any makeup at all. Cosmetics must be applied subtly, artistically and sparingly—but certainly they ought not to be eliminated from the daily grooming routines of the average girl. That is, unless she has rosy cheeks, naturally red lips and a complexion which never gets shiny or grayish or sallow.

HELP OUT PALE EYELASHES AND BROWS

Colorless eyelashes and brows are the greatest contributors to the washed-out look. If nature gave us pale, thin, blonde eyebrows, by no means experiment with a brown—not black—eyebrow pencil. And see how much larger and more sparkling your eyes seem to be when their colorless lashes are lightly tinted with waterproof mascara.

Another contributor to the washed-out, faded look is dull, lifeless hair. The woman whose hair is "just plain brown" ought to take care that it doesn't become mousey brown. Daily cleansings and polishing with a lustrous will help. A weekly shampoo, a series of scalp treatments at least once a year, and the best available permanents also will help a great deal.

POWDER AND ROUGE HAVE THEIR USES

It is no longer considered chic to extend lipstick beyond the natural outline of your lips or to pile it on an eighth of an inch thick. However, don't think for a moment that a little lipstick won't improve your face.

Powder is supposed to dramatize the skin—not hide it completely. On the other hand, it ought not to be used so sparingly that shiny spots are evident. Furthermore, faulty rosy powder will conceal sallow tones. And sallowness always accentuates any tendency toward the washed out look.

Rouge is applied to the cheeks and spread it over your face and throat. When this is partly dry, spread the beaten white over the cheeks. When this is dry on the outside, wash it off with warm water.

What To Do

I am taking my first train trip in a chair car, which will be but one day. Now just where is the luggage put—there will be three or four pieces—and should I leave my coat on the seat when going to the dining car or take it with me? Also must you keep a hat on all day, or just when in the dining car? Thanks! MRS. P. C. C.

Answer—When a person has more luggage than can comfortably be taken care of on a seat or alongside a chair, the porter will find a place for it in some extra space at either end of the Pullman. It is perfectly safe to leave your coat on your chair while going into the diner at mealtime. A dining car on the train is no different than a restaurant or hotel and while there is no rule that says a woman must wear a hat in a diner, you will find most experienced women travellers wearing one. Aside from the time spent in the diner, there is no reason why you should wear your hat if you will be more comfortable with it off.

DIANAGRAM PATTERN

These DIANAGRAMS make patterns instead of block letters, when certain words are blacked in to form a sentence. Words may be spelled in any straight-line direction: up, down, right, left, or diagonally. For example, Fig. 2 forms a rather foolish four-word phrase (blacked in from Fig. 1), each word reading inward to the center: TRY THE SEA TOO.

In Fig. 1 the large DIANAGRAM, but not blacked in, note that the three-letter diagonals, reading outward, make the sentence: SHE SAW HER CAR.

But there is also a six-word sentence, making another symmetrical pattern and meaning "It is not very hard to find out how." Can you black in those six words and write them in a sentence below?

Solution tomorrow.

MATURE FIGURE FLATTERY
Slimming Lines

3266
SIZES
36 - 50

Such slimming lines are hard to find. This dress was designed with the more mature figure in mind, as you can see. Soft but fullness, panelled skirt, and comfortable sleeves are all points that will interest the woman who wears larger sizes. A V-neck with an snowy white collar, edged with dainty ruffling turns thoughts unfailingly toward the warmer days. Cotton or silk print is practical and economical for the woman who does her own sewing, and she is fortunate to have better fit if she makes this dress for herself.

Style No. 3266 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material for short sleeved dress; ¼ yard for collar.

Send fifteen cents in coin for Pattern. Write plainly your Name, Address and Style Number. Be sure to state size you wish. Address Pattern Department, The Edmonton Bulletin, Edmonton, Alberta.

Slips Offend Desirable Friends

A small thing an introduction but how quickly it can reveal the socially inexperienced.

The wife who introduces her husband with "This is Mr. Smith" makes a very poor impression. A well-mannered woman would say to acquaintances, "This is my husband," or, to an intimate friend, "This is John."

A pity for a wife not to be sure of etiquette, for her social graces may be an important factor in her husband's career.

If in doubt about whether to rise for a greeting, check up. A woman always rises as hostess to greet her guests. She rises, too, when introduced to a much older woman, but never for a man unless he is very old or very distinguished.

How to reply to a formal invitation? Write your answer by hand, spacing it as the invitation was spaced. Uncertain about whether to "dress up" for a party? Call your hostess and inquire, "Are we dressing formally?"

Have the poise and assurance that comes from knowing the right thing! Our 32-page booklet tells what's correct for hostess and guest; gives etiquette for theatre, country club and hotels, for traveling, motoring, sports, dances. Discusses telephone etiquette, tipping, conduct toward servants.

Debunker

Though general belief is to the contrary, the typical leather-bound books is that the more they are handled, within reasonable limits, the longer they last. Scientists tell us that handling a book is a means of preserving it. Salt, which is always in the perspiration of the hands, is a preservative to leather and helps keep it from cracking. So don't worry about the old well-handled volumes that seem spoiled; they are probably better than when they were new.

Tomato Really Fruit

The tomato, technically is classed as a berry by botanists, and, as such, would also be classed as a fruit. The Bureau of Plant Industry, however, classes it as a vegetable, and it is popularly and commercially known as such.

Imperial Oil and International Petroleum turned soft. Canadian Car, Smelters, Massey-Harris and Canadian Celanese were down. Nickel and Canada Steamship preferred had moderate gains.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 30.—Stock market leaders displayed slight recovery leanings during the greater part of today's session, but most backed away in the final hour.

While fractional gains were retained by scattered favorites, losses of fractions to a point or so were well distributed at the close.

Contesting the downward trend were General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil of N.J., Texas Corp., Rayonier and Bohn Aluminum.

Without much support at the finish were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Kennecott, Anaconda, International Paper, preferred, United Aircraft and Glenn Martin.

WHEAT OFF AT MARKET CLOSE

WINNIPEG, April 30.—An export business in Canadian wheat estimated at 250,000 bushels was the only feature of a dull Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Wheat futures prices fluctuated slowly throughout the session but weakened near the close and finished 1 to ⅞ cent lower, May at 88¾, July 90½-⅝ and October 92½.

Lack of aggressive buying, rather than any pronounced selling, were with export connections were credited responsible for the small losses. Houses with light purchases in the pit.

United Kingdom and the neutral countries of Europe were mentioned as buyers.

Broomhall

It is reported that 122,935,000 bushels of wheat are held by mills basis March 31, 1940, according to the bureau of census at Washington. If this figure is correct, then total stocks in all positions in the United States are practically the same as they were a year ago. The weather was extremely favorable over the weekend with general rains and higher temperatures reported. This attracted considerable liquidation early in the session yesterday but shorts covered before the close and additional buying by commission houses resulted in a sharp rally. Maximum selling prices of cereal products for animal feeding have been amended as of April 1940 in London basis c.i.f. corn (cinquantina) 87¾ cents a bushel, other varieties 75¼. Imported barley 63⅞ cents. Oats Canadian 2 CW 63⅞ per 32 pounds, Argentine 59½ cents per 32 pounds 1 Canadian feed 59½ cents. Canadian mixed Vancouver 56 cents. Atlantic 54½ cents. There is little desire to import feeding grains in England due to the scarcity of free tonnage and it is preferable to take the finished meat.

340,000 HAVE REFRIGERATORS MANAGER SAYS

Since 1929 more than 340,000 people in Canada have bought electric refrigerators for domestic use, according to Gordon Harris, manager of the appliance division of Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, who is visiting this city during the course of a tour of his company's western branches.

"In the past few years," declared Mr. Harris, "the domestic refrigerator situation has changed radically in our dominion. Purchase costs have been cut tremendously, operating costs have been cut in half, and efficiency has been more than doubled. In quietness of operation, and in other respects, too, refrigerators have been vastly improved.

"Few women these days consider electrical appliances to be 'luxury' items. They are looked on as very important parts of the housewife's material and are considered to be practically a necessity. With low domestic power rates in effect and with purchase costs stabilized at a near-minimum level, it is not surprising that Canadians are buying more electrical appliances than ever before."

Mr. Harris pointed out that since 1929 the average price of electric refrigerators and electric washers has been cut in half. "And," he emphasized, "like hundreds of other manufactured articles today, they perform better and cost less to operate than the older, higher-priced models."

C.P.R. Constable Given Medal For Saving Life Of Woman At City Depot

An Edmonton man, Const. W. J. Arbuthnot, of the Canadian Pacific Railway police here, has been awarded a bronze medal by the Royal Canadian Humane Society for saving Mrs. W. Nichol of the Okanagan Valley, B. C., from death in front of a train in the Canadian Pacific Railway station in Edmonton Jan. 26, 1940, it was announced by officers of the society in Hamilton, Ont., Tuesday.

Today Const. Arbuthnot is confined to his home with a twisted back, received last week when he jumped from a moving locomotive in the course of his duties.

When asked by reporters to recall the occasion on which he saved the woman's life, he insisted it all happened so quickly that it was over before he knew what he had really done and then it was too late to remember. He admitted, however, that he had been a little "jittery" after friends had pointed out to him how close he had come to death.

DIDN'T SEE TRAIN

Witnesses who saw his act of heroism said Mrs. Nichol apparently did not notice a train was approaching and stepped from the platform directly in front of the locomotive.

They said that Const. Arbuthnot who was on the platform dashed towards her, grasped her and rolled with her clear of the engine to the other side of the track. Mrs. Nichol picked herself up and assured those who assisted her that she was unhurt.

Arbuthnot's only comment when the report was read to him was to shrug his shoulders, smile, and say: "Well, somebody had to get her out of the engine's road. I guess I just thought first."

Arbuthnot has been with the C.P.R. police department for 13 years during which time he has served in practically all main centres in the west. He came to Edmonton last August but was stationed here for a short time years ago.

THREE CHILDREN

He lives at 11301 102 avenue with his wife and three children—William, 10; Marion, 7, and Joyce, 4. He finds his work interesting, but not as exciting as some folks imagine," and likes it. He says he is glad he won the medal but doesn't think he did any more than anybody else would have done if they had been there.

The dispatch from Hamilton announcing the award to Const. Arbuthnot also revealed that the following persons had been awarded parchment certificates for heroic actions:

Mrs. Alma E. Faust, Wadena, Sask., for saving Malcolm McLean from drowning in a well, Dec. 31, 1939.

Irene Bishop and John Mortimer, McKenzie, of Wolseley, Sask., for the rescue of Alvin Chay from drowning in a reservoir, Dec. 12, 1939.

Allan Brand and Norburn Todd of Winnipeg, for the rescue of Johnny Faloon from drowning in the Red River, Dec. 27, 1939.

Ernest Farion and Eugene Clyde, of Kamsack, Sask., for the rescue of Ruth Steiger, Irene Carza and Joan Bloomfield, from drowning in Madge Lake, Nov. 24, 1939.

Edwin Berry (3124 Broder street) and Jacob Schum (2140 Broder street), Regina, Sask., for saving William Parrish from drowning in Wascana Lake, Nov. 12, 1939.

Bravery Medal

CONST. W. J. ARBUTHNOT of the C.P.R. police in Edmonton who has been awarded a bronze medal by the Royal Canadian Humane Society for saving the life of a woman at the city depot last January. He pulled her out of the path of an approaching train.

Through The Mill

The guy admits he is a thief, see, but he ain't one to stand by and see an innocent skirt get rapped for something he did all by his lonesome. Nope. After all, as Tizz-Too wrote: "Even a thug can have a decent impulse." And that is what the guy had when they hauled him into court, although it was a different kind of impulse that got him there.

* * *

He and the skirt are just roaming through one of the downtown department stores looking around, and breathing deeply, glad it's spring and looking at all the lovely things that are spread out on the counters.

* * *

Now as they glance about his eyes fall on a very lovely silk bed spread. It turns out that he has always wanted a bedspread like that ever since he saw one on a bed in a movie in which Edward G. Robinson played the tough guy and slept on the bed. But the guy hasn't got the bucks to buy the slinky bit of sheen, see. So what is he to do? Just what your mother told you never to do.

* * *

He looks around to see if anybody is looking. Nobody is looking. So then—you guessed it pal—with a quick flip of a practised wrist he jerks the thing off the counter and slips it up under his armpit. Then, looking like an usher in church, he hikes for the door. The dame is tagging along.

* * *

Why it is so easy he can hardly believe it is true. Cheer! Here he is with a bedspread just like Edward G. Robinson's. Cheer! He can hardly wait to get home to put it on the bed and see how nice it looks.

* * *

Well, folks, it was so easy that it wasn't true. Crime doesn't pay. At least, that's what they tell me. What the guy overlooks is the fact that Det. Murdo Munro—known as the eagle-eye in his intimates—is watching him all the time. And just as the guy is drawing another sigh, Murdo's hand falls on his shoulder and his Scotch brogue says, "Come awa' wi' me, lad."

* * *

Now Murdo is a very suspicious guy, especially where fluffs are concerned anyway, and he hugs the guy's gal along, too. But in police court Tuesday the guy says he didn't act alone and that he didn't nip so slick the fluff doesn't even know he has it, see. So the cadi dismissed the gal on account of there is a doubt, he says, and he slaps the guy down to jail for four months. Which wouldn't have been so bad except that he ordered the bedspread be returned to the store. All of which makes the next four months a complete waste of time as far as the guy is concerned.

* * *

Two brothers who obtained ten bucks by hum cheques were given suspended sentences of a year each when they arranged to make restitution. Even respectable citizens make mistakes with their bank accounts.

Construction Of Two City Schools To Start May 15

It is the school board's intention to erect a 14-room high school costing $110,000 and a four-room elementary school costing $90,000. Total cost of both schools, including equipment, will be approximately $173,000.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Albert Forest of 10734 105 street has submitted the question "What do you think of the Dominion-provincial youth training plan?" The question earns a dollar for Mr. Forest.

THE ANSWERS

ROBERT ALLSOPP, insurance salesman: The plan appears to be working out very well. It is a very good scheme to have been organized for the benefit of the youth of the province.

* * *

AMBY LENON, florist: It certainly is a good thing. The demonstration given at the Arena last week was very much worthwhile, and should, I think, be repeated as often as possible.

* * *

MRS. A. HELLER, housewife: I think it is a very good thing and the more we can do to help our young people the better off we will be. There is a great responsibility for the older generation to help that type of one, and such schemes as this are among the best things we can do for the youth in the province.

Former Varsity Student Doing Research Work

Word has been received here that Edward Neilson of Camrose, former student and graduate of the University of Alberta in 1935, is now working on the isolation of the "anti-gray hair" vitamin at the University of Wisconsin.

Neilson graduated with a B.Sc. in pharmacy and after a years graduate study here proceeded to Wisconsin where he took up his vitamin studies under the direction of Dr. J. J. Elvehjem, a foremost authority on vitamin "B." Neilson's work has to do with methods of concentrating and separating the so-called anti-grey hair factor in vitamin B.

RESTAURANT WORKERS ASK HIGHER WAGE

Federation Of Labor Makes Representations For Employees

Opening a province-wide survey of industrial conditions at the court house Monday, the Industrial Relations Board heard a plea by Carl E. Berg, for increased pay for male and female restaurant employees. Mr. Berg's representations were made on behalf of the Alberta Federation of Labor and the Hotel and Restaurant Workers International Alliance.

Appearing before the board, waitress and waitresses also submitted a plea for increased wages.

At present waitresses receive a minimum wage of $12.50 a week. Provision is made whereby employers can charge them up to $5 a week for 21 meals, which works out on the basis of 22 cents a meal.

LIVING COSTS

Advocating increased minimum wage, Mr. Berg directed attention to increase living costs for waitresses. He declared that women desiring to hold their jobs in hotels or cafes, had to wear silk stockings and used two pairs weekly. Also they were expected to have their hair "permanented" waved.

Mr. Berg submitted that some compensation should be due these employees when a new minimum wage was struck. The question of holidays to permit them to hold up their strength was another matter, to which Mr. Berg directed attention.

He said that the Federation "feels that the present minimum wage is entirely inadequate to meet present living standards and we request a minimum of $14 a week consisting of 48 hours in all first-class restaurants and $11 per week in all second class restaurants, meals to be included."

"The present deductions for meals should be abolished and the girls permitted to choose their meals from the regular bill of fare. All uniforms should be furnished by the employers free, of charge and the laundering borne by the employers."

35 CENTS AN HOUR

Payment of 35 cents an hour with meals included, to extra waitresses was urged by Mr. Berg, who contended that each call should consist of four hours straight and not be broken into separate shifts. He charged that employment of too many apprentices and 25 cents an hour now allowed under the approved determinal alike to the experienced employee and the inexperienced.

Mr. Berg said the difficulty of establishing classification of first and second class restaurants could be overcome by setting a sufficiently high minimum for all.

One waitress voiced objection to the deduction weekly of $5 for meals. She said many preferred to be paid the full minimum wage and have the privilege of eating meals at desired places. Another witness contended meals should be included in the minimum wage. Another witness said that a "Provincial group" had been formed but that it was not affiliated with labor organizations. A proposed minimum wage for waiters and waitresses, cooks, bus boys and other help, had been drafted by it.

Presiding was Clayton Adams, chairman of the board, and sitting with him were W. D. King, F. Rasmussen and R. J. Gaunt of the trade and industry department. Also mentioned acting as secretary. Some time ago the board held similar sittings at Lethbridge and next Tuesday will open a sitting at Calgary.

INCOME TAX RETURNS DUE ON TUESDAY

Dominion government income tax returns for the year 1939 are due to be filed sometime Tuesday or else there is a penalty attached of five per cent of the tax payable.

In addition, those filing returns are urged to remember that there was a special war surtax imposed at the special session of parliament last September. This tax is 20 per cent of the tax payable and is over and above other imposts.

Lt. Col. A. E. Ladler, V.D., acting superintendent of income tax, advised that tax returns are being filed in a "steady stream" and a heavy rush was reported Tuesday.

Acadia Recount Is Underway At Hanna Tuesday

Recount of ballots in the Acadia Dominion constituency was scheduled to get underway Tuesday under the direction of W. Manning Cessford, returning officer for the constituency.

Capt. Victor W. Quelch, M.C., Non-Democracy, won the seat by 27 votes on a deputy returning officers' tabulation last week and Dr. Allan Day, Liberal, who had been elected on the first returning officers' returns, then asked for a recount.

C. H. Grant, K.C., of this city, is at Hanna, where the recount is taking place, to look after Dr. Day's interests.

SOUTH ALBERTA WANTS ANOTHER CABINET MEMBER

Increased cabinet representation for southern Alberta, with consideration given to appointment to the cabinet of James Hartley, Social Credit member of the legislature for Macleod, was urged in a resolution passed unanimously at a meeting of the executive of the Macleod board of trade recently. "The secretary was instructed to communicate with Premier Aberhart on this subject.

Motion to this effect was moved by William Wentworth, a member of the town council.

Another resolution passed was that the resolution urging cabinet representation for Mr. Hartley be brought before the associated boards of trade for Crow's Nest Pass for endorsation. This also passed unanimously.

Included among those speaking in favor of the motion urging Mr. Hartley's appointment to the cabinet was J. W. McDonald, C.C.F. provincial Liberal leader. All those favoring the resolution were reported to be political opponents of Mr. Hartley, who, however, are said to favor his appointment to give the south greater representation.

Bridge Re-Decking, 104 Avenue Walk Are Now Underway

City engineers department was busy Tuesday on a number of civic improvements, largest of which will be re-decking of the 101 Creek bridge at a cost of $18,000 and the construction of a standard, 5-foot, paved sidewalk along the south side of 104 avenue from 109 street to 124 street exclusive of a section between 109 and 123 street which has already been paved.

Construction of the sidewalks follows numerous complaints from citizens and arose partly as a result of several accidents—three of them fatal—to pedestrians walking along 104 avenue which has been locally called "Death Trail." The sidewalk will cost $6,000.

FULL JURY IS SELECTED FOR TOBACCO CASE

Talesmen Will Receive $5 A Day By Special Order-In-Council

The jury to hear evidence in alleged tobacco combine charges against 35 manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers was completed at the court house Tuesday morning after 151 jurors had been called. The panel was completed after five hours and 45 minutes of court sittings.

The six jurymen sworn to try the case are A. B. Macleod, W. B. Cairns, C. C. Archer, H. L. Bay, Sidney Martin, all of Edmonton, and J. M. Bentley, farmer, North Edmonton. Mr. Justice A. McGillivray is the presiding judge.

$5 A DAY

Following the completion of the jury, Mr. Justice McGillivray announced that he had been authorized by a special order-in-council to increase the jury fees from $2 to $5 daily, plus the usual allowances for travelling and subsistance. Length of the trial and the sacrifice which the jurors are giving would be called on to make were given as reasons for the issuance of the order-in-council.

In the selection of the jury 151 of the 172 jurors summoned for the trial were called. Of these 81 were challenged by the crown, 39 were excused by the court and six were ordered to stand aside by crown counsel.

With the formalities of swearing in the jurymen completed, application was made by Lionel Forsyth, K.C. Montreal, on behalf of the clients he represented, for dismissal of the charges. Other counsel with the exception of George H. Steer, K.C., counsel for W. C. Macdonalds Incorporated, joined in this motion, which was refused by Mr. Justice McGillivray.

CHARGES READ

The clerk of the court then read the charges to the jurors and proceeded to read details of particulars of the alleged acts which constituted the subject matter of the charges. Reading of these particulars was continuing at the noon adjournment.

Mr. Forsyth, during the reading of particulars, objected to the quotation of contents of documents before they had been submitted as relevant, or admissable. The court held that the crown accepted responsibility for its submissions and if failed to prove a statement made to the jury it might be fatal to its case.

Entries for these events do not close until the day of the event.

I.O.D.E. Is Providing Comforts for Soldiers: Large Quantity Needed

At the request of military authorities at Ottawa who remember the excellence of their work and the great contribution they made to the welfare of the men in the fighting forces in the 1914-1918 Great War, the Imperial Daughters of the Empire in Alberta are again undertaking to provide field comforts for Alberta's soldiers in the present war.

Tobacco, cigarettes and chocolate are among the needs which will be supplied Alberta's overseas forces through the I.O.D.E., in addition to socks, comforters, wool vests, etc. A depot has been opened in the Hudson's Bay Company store on Jasper, and members of the general public wishing to co-operate in this work of the I.O.D.E. are asked to make their contributions there. Wool, socks, tobacco, cigarettes, chocolate or cash will be accepted.

Through the courtesy of the Canadian railways and express companies all goods forwarded by the order for Alberta troops overseas are carried free of charge, on that all funds can be used for the purpose for which they are contributed.

NEED LARGE QUANTITIES

"Cigarettes and tobacco, chocolates and other field comforts were needed in large quantities in the last war, and they will be just as urgently required in the present war," said Mrs. R. C. Marshall, M.B.E., president of the provincial I.O.D.E. Chapter for Alberta today. "It is our desire to see that every man from Alberta receives his share of field comforts regularly, and our contribution will be no small. It will need the united effort of all members of our order and the general public to carry on this work, and we will be glad of co-operation and assistance from any source."

As stated above, contributions either of materials or cash can be made at the I.O.D.E. sock depot in the Hudson's Bay Company store.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SHERRY BOND, society girl owner of race horse, Pepper Boy.

PAUL WHARTON, a rival owner, determined to teach Sherry that racing is not a woman's game.

SHEP GRANT, young gentleman rider.

WILLIE BOND, Sherry's uncle, a turf "adviser."

* * *

Yesterday: Wharton wins the horse, but Uncle Willie shows his claim and that of the other trainer were made in violation of Jockey Club rules. The horse is returned to Sherry. Later, Paul explains he was trying to save Pepper Boy for Sherry. begs her to marry him now. She starts to answer.

CHAPTER VII

EAGERLY, Paul Wharton waited for Sherry to continue. "Yes, Sherry, go on."

But Sherry's sentence was never finished. At that moment a tall, thin chap, with a great mop of blonde hair, stepped into the box.

"Sherry Bond!"

"Shep Grant! What are you doing here?" She jerked her hand free, grasped Grant's outstretched hand. Wharton looked up, making little effort to conceal his resentment. "My friend, Paul Wharton. Shep. Paul, this is Shep Grant. Sit down, Shep."

Wharton nodded. "I've met Grant."

"Swell colt you've got, Sherry," Grant was saying. "He's got everything. And can he run! And Madden—I couldn't have ridden Pepper Boy much better myself. I intended offering, but I couldn't make it in from Chicago in time."

"Since when have you been riding on the flat?" Wharton asked. "Thought you were the white-haired boy in steeplechasing."

"I do ride over the sticks," Shep Grant answered nonchalantly, his eyes never leaving Sherry's face. "But I'm light. Going to ride on the flat this season, too. But say, Sherry, about the Derby—"

"Paul was just speaking of it," she said, tonelessly.

"Yeah? About Pepper Boy? Say, I heard there were a couple of claims—did you lose him?"

She shook her head. "Paul says he was ready to save him."

"That so," The intruder looked suspiciously at Wharton. The latter ignored his glance.

"Paul advised me twice not to start the colt in a claimer. When I did, he tried to claim him for me. He—and the other fellow—both bet on technicalities."

"Wait a minute!" Shep Grant sat forward on the seat. "Paul Wharton tried to claim your colt?"

She nodded.

"Let me get this straight," the rider looked from Wharton to Sherry. "He was going to let you buy him back, at the claiming price?"

Sherry looked at Wharton. "That was it, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

The blond chap whistled—softly. And grinned. Sherry saw Wharton's face turn fiery red. She looked at the second man. "Shep Grant, what's up?"

"Not a thing," he said with an exaggerated drawl, "not a little thing. But you ought to bone up on claiming rules, before you fair for bedtime tales."

Wharton was on his feet. He said in low tones: "You might explain that—and you might explain where you come in on this."

"I come in right here, fellow," Shep Grant got to his feet, faced Wharton. "Maybe that's business, Wharton—you're a whiz at business, but racing's something else again."

Sherry's voice rose insistently. "Please explain, Shep."

"Nothing special to explain," he turned to her. "But you should know that no horse claimed can start in the name of its former owner till 30 days have passed—and 14 days from today the Kentucky Derby is run. Seems as if Wharton was going to be in the Derby—with Pepper Boy carrying his colors. Later, the colt might run in yours again."

He grinned, nodded his head at Wharton, started up the three steps leading out of the box.

"One minute, Grant."

Wharton's voice was low, but Sherry caught a razor-like sharpness in it. She saw Shep Grant turn swiftly around.

"You may know racing," Wharton's voice crackled, "but you've got a lot to learn about human nature. My colors are going to be in the Handicap in run. He's going to spreadeagle that field. I don't need Sherry's colt—and if I did, I haven't sunk that low." He turned his shoulder, then spoke over it to the gentleman rider, "Good day, Grant."

* * *

Grant stood there for a moment, reddened from top of soft collar to edge of his fair hair, then quietly turned and left the box. Sherry, over Paul Wharton's shoulder, watched him move off in the aisle crowds.

"Paul," she asked, "is it true, what Shep said? That I couldn't buy the colt back in less than 30 days?"

"You could buy him back the next minute—but you couldn't race him until 30 days passed."

"I see." She glanced out toward the track, where a field was paraded to the post. "Paul, then the colt couldn't—"

He broke in, sensing her question. "The colt would have run in your name, silly." He spoke the words lightly.

"How could he?" she asked, a cloud gathering in her face.

"Silly!" he repeated, as if to a child. "He'd have run in the name of Mrs. Paul Wharton, of course!"

"Oh, oh!" she repeated, eyes focused on his face. "How very sweet of you! Using my Pepper Boy as a sort of bribe—to get me to marry you!"

Paul Wharton caught her hand, leaned closer to her.

"The colt would be yours—and everything else I own."

"You might let go my hand," she said in a low, furious tone. "Of all the ungorting, lowdown tricks! Trying to steal my horse that way!"

"Steal? According to regulations—"

"Hush! I wouldn't have believed it of you!"

"Sherry, dear," Wharton's voice was husky, and he continued to hold her hand with firm grip. "You've got to listen to me—and to believe me. What I told you about claiming Pepper Boy is the truth. And—you don't belong in this racing game. I want to get you out of it. It'd be different if you weren't so young and so utterly beautiful—"

Sherry broke in scornfully. "Suppose you drop my hand—and let me out of here!" He released his grip, stepped back. She was scoring him with her eyes. "Don't you ever speak to me again as long as you live!"

* * *

Hot tears burned Sherry's eyes as she hurried through the crowd to the big man standing at the rail.

Uncle Willie was in a lenie mood. He lifted his scarred old field glasses, surveyed the track. The Handicap horses were parading to the post. Though Sherry stood beside him on the lawn bench behind the rail, the big fellow spoke as if to himself:

"In the paddock, they say Red Soldier's a standout—yet he's not even favorite—maybe young Wharton's putting over a good thing. . . wish I knew."

"He told me just a minute ago," Sherry said before she thought that Red Soldier would spreadeagle this field."

"He did, eh?" Uncle Bill lowered his glasses, asked in a flash: "How'd he say it—bragging, or serious?"

"He—why—" Sherry tried to reconstruct the mood of the moment. "I guess it was bragging—in a way; but if his colt doesn't make good—well, he's laid himself wide open and to a man who'll jeer plenty at him."

Willie Bond considered the matter for all of three seconds. Then he broke in again. "My dear, hold these glasses—hold my place—Business, my dear, business — be back in a moment."

The horses were at the post when he returned. Red Soldier, in the light green and cherry red blocks of the Wharton Stable, was cutting up at the post—the starter was placing him outside.

"They're off!" the crowd yelled as the field sprang forward on the backstretch. Sherry saw the green and red shoot to the front—the jockey was cutting across to the rail—he had stolen the start—he was three lengths ahead.

Someone jammed up beside her on the bench: Uncle Willie. He exuded confidence. "Magnificent start—for Red Soldier," he exclaimed. "Just heard that—right after the race—Red Soldier will be cooled out, put in a van, and shipped to Churchill Downs—to prepare for the Derby. Look at him! He's tow-roping the field—fancy!"

Sherry saw the colt "way out in front, running into the far turn, open daylight between him and the field. Willie Bond was booming in her ear: "If that boy will just hold him snug till the last furlong—he's doing it in my record—and he's still two lengths ahead and running easy. They're whipping in the field behind him."

The rest of the race was a blur to Sherry. The horses swung into the stretch, a spot of green and cherry in front. Then she saw something yellow and black lean out from the pack of horses behind. Now two horses were fighting it out, down that short stretch.

Willie Bond seized Sherry's arm in vise-like grip. He was screaming in her ear: "Now's the time to make his run—come on, you rascal! Come on—don't let us down—turn him loose—let him run, you fool!"

The jockey on Red Soldier, as if he heard, lifted his reins, flung himself forward, began handriding his mount, pressing hands against the colt's neck—urging him on. A hundred feet from the wire the challenger came alongside—running fast. Then the bay leaped forward as if lashed from behind—in two mighty strides spurted a length ahead—swept under the wire—winner, going away!

"My word! What a colt!" Willie Bond exclaimed in awe. "The boy never touched him with a whip, either. And look!" — the time of the race was going up on the board —"He's equalled the track record!"

Canadian Pilot Gave Renown Tip-off for Its Attack on Scharnhorst

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 30.—A Canadian pilot at the controls of a 20-ton Sunderland flying boat gave the Royal Navy the tip-off which led to the engagement in which the battle cruiser Renown damaged the German battleship Scharnhorst April 8, it was learned last night.

The flying boat was acting as the eyes of the home fleet which was steaming to intercept German naval forces covering the Norwegian invasion. It spotted the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst and a 10,000-ton cruiser of the Hipper class off Narvik.

Emerging from the thick cloud, the Canadian pilot, whose name was not announced, had only a few seconds' glimpse of the German ships before they opened fire on him. But he dodged away to safety in the clouds and wirelessed the approximate position to the commander in chief.

The Renown took up the chase and in a short engagement inflicted heavy damage on the Scharnhorst. But the two German ships slipped out of sight under cover of a snowstorm and a smokescreen laid by the Hipper class cruiser.

The crew of the Renown saw smoke arise from the Scharnhorst when she was hit. A shell passed through the Renown ... the waterline without ...

Canadian Machine-Gun Units Show Mobility by Rapid Emergency Move

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ALDERSHOT, April 30—With clocklike precision and efficiency, machine-gun units of the Canadian 1st Division have completed an emergency move and pitched camp in a new training area "somewhere in England." Tonight and for the next three weeks this body of men whose number cannot be disclosed will sleep under canvas amid the green of the spring countryside.

The sudden shift from Aldershot, made by motor transport and rail, marked the first major operation to test the mobility of the Canadian forces under simulated active service conditions. Every piece of equipment, arms and stores was moved ... barrel. The manoeuvre forms part of the advanced collective training program in which every unit in the division will ultimately take part.

The test of such a movement is essentially governed by elements of surprise, and only senior officers were aware of its full scope and nature.

It was not until the columns were ready to leave that the destination was revealed. The reaction of the men was spontaneous. Glad of sudden release from their camp billets and eager for a change in scene, the men resembled overjoyed schoolboys about to take off on a holiday. Whoops of delight roared from the long khaki lines as they scrambled into trucks or marched off to the ...

HIGHER SPEEDS, TEMPERATURES, PRESSURES!

So SCIENCE MADE THIS BETTER OIL

● The efficiency of the modern automobile engine has advanced a long way over the engine of a few years ago. It is 25% smaller, its weight has been decreased 35%, yet it develops double the horse power.

The modern engine runs faster and consequently hotter. Clearances between bearing surfaces have been reduced while compression ratios have been increased.

Lubrication, therefore, is more important than ever. The New Marvelube developed in Imperial Oil research laboratories is engineered for the faster, hotter running engines of today.

The original Marvelube has long been a leader among motor oils. The New Marvelube retains all the original high qualities—now also it possesses these improved characteristics:

It lasts longer. At today's high speeds and temperatures it gives maximum oil mileage.

It keeps engines cleaner. It will give you that lively feeling of instant, surging power. Wear is reduced. Upkeep costs come down.

So, take advantage of this outstanding new oil—now! Drive in where you see the Imperial Oval Sign.

Sparring in Sport - -

BY JACK DEAKIN

KIRKLAND Lake Blue Devils' smashing triumph in the Allan Cup championship proved their worth as they straight games ended the 1939-40 hockey campaign. A new season is still many months away. But foundations for next year's team are being laid on the mound of fairies in the west. Southern scouts of the Alberta Senior League are already planning their new lineups.

And these southern clubs are making their selections from the ranks of Edmonton juniors who look like senior timber for the forthcoming season. Even the graduating juniors will find the Flyers could easily weld into a fast, well-balanced team.

First and foremost of these juniors is goalie Cliff Kilburn, a young man who aided greatly in Edmonton Athletic Club's drive to the Memorial Cup junior final. Cliff is reported to have had a very successful season from one of the professional southern teams. So entering a very strong bid for the job, it is only thinking of doing one thing and Edmonton's juniors have done so previous years—leaving the town for greener fields.

KILBURN COULD BE ASSET TO FLYERS

EDMONTON junior ranks have produced one No. 1 goalie after many other stars. Previously, the favourites to step into the shoes of Maple Leaf Gardens' Turk Broda have been Bill Beveridge, with Chicago Black Hawks, and Kilburn, another former Edmonton junior.

I have watched Kilburn for the past three years with the Flyers. He always gave a good account of himself, was an outstanding player and a real sportsman. Kilburn, a product of the junior ranks, is a big boy. He has been with Chicago Black Hawks and Kilburn, another former Edmonton junior.

Although Castilluux' dominion championship team was built around veteran players, interest in the 10-round bout centred on Promoter Jack Allen and Manager Bill Marquart.

Settlement of Gridiron Rules to Be Attempted

MONTREAL, April 30.—Settlement of the rules dispute between eastern and western Canada football sections will be attempted at the annual meeting of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union here May 11, President Ernie Hamilton announced Monday.

Hamilton said the date of the meeting was advanced to deal with the problem, brought to a head Sunday night by the Western Interprovincial Football Union's refusal to accept the Canadian Rugby Union code.

"I think they have made a mistake," said Billy Foulds, chairman of the C.R.U. rules committee. "If the west would only see its way to make some slight changes of our game a uniform set of rules would be acceptable to the public after a year or two."

HAYMAN HAS VIEWS

Commenting on the elimination of "three yards and a scrimmage" rule, Warren Stevens, athletic director of the University of Toronto would like to see C.R.U. football develop into "a game such as they have out there."

"Without the final, something unfinished will be felt about the football season," said Alex Ponton, coach of Balmy Beach. "But I don't say we would be better off without it if the existing situation continues. If the east beats the western champions the west can blame the rules."

"The public pays the way for it," he said, "and they want the best, smart football club."

Despite the war news, everything afloat does not creep along in fear of deadly mines and torpedoes. Take these contestants in the recent national dinghy regatta at Larchmont, N.Y. for instance. Only worries skippers of the tiny craft had were the wind and the sailing skill of their rivals.

Commercial Grads Play at Top Form In Strenuous Drill Against Boys

LEAVING no stone unturned to be in the best of shape for their games this spring, the Commercial "Grads" ran through a strenuous six-period scrimmage practice out at the Arena last night against the Boy Grads. These two teams are well matched—the boys having the edge in height, weight and strength, but the girls more than holding their own in clever passing and in shooting accuracy.

The opening game takes place on Saturday night when the Commercial Grads meet the Victoria Composite Senior "B" title, furnishing the opposition. The Westerns, coached by Ed Sadlemire, garner handily and promptly challenged the Grads for the "open" championship.

HAVE ADVANTAGE

The game not previously played in Edmonton. They will have a decided advantage over the Grads in height, but it is believed that the locals will more than offset this disadvantage by their greater skill in the fundamentals of the game.

The announcement of the All-Star contest, by which fans will have the opportunity to select their own team, has aroused a great deal of interest. Ballots will be distributed to all adults attending each game, and fans will be asked to write the names of their five favorites in the space provided.

AND WIN $500

The team will be selected as a result of a final check-up of all ballots and the person who has been fortunate enough to "call the shots" will be awarded $500.

Manitobans Stage Rally to Win 49-40

WINNIPEG, April 30.—Winnipeg St. Andrew's deadlocked the best-of-five western Canada senior men's basketball final at one victory apiece by defeating Vancouver Maple Leafs 49-40 here last night in the second game.

The British Columbians won the first game Saturday 37-30, coming from behind with a great closing rally, but last night the Manitobans were ahead almost from the start. The Saints led 25-15 at half-time.. The teams meet again tonight.

Jack Tomes, forward, who has starred with the four-time Manitoba champions for several seasons, captured shooting honors with 10 points. Joe Ross, Art Willoughby and Ralph Henderson of Vancouver, and Dick Flower of Winnipeg fired eight points each.

The contest was far rougher than the series opener and at one point a fight threatened to break out as Ed Smith, Winnipeg guard, became steamed up over a tussle with Ross, Vancouver's big centre. Thirty fouls were called, 10 more than in the previous game.

THREE BANISHED

Three players were forced to the sidelines with four personal fouls each. Bob McCance, Winnipeg centre, who usually acts only as a spare, played most of the first half and left the game early in the second half. He was soon followed by his brother Chet and later by Jim Bradley of Vancouver.

Leafs, who have largely the same team that won the Canadian title two years ago as Vancouver Westerns, had only seven players available. Their starting team kept pace with the Andys for the first five minutes, then gradually fell behind.

Winnipeg found plenty of spark for their great first half showing. On the jump all the way, they found and used three of their players shooting with uncanny accuracy. Big Dick Flower, husky centre whose height of six feet, four inches gave him a reaching edge over all the other players in the game, counted on three of his five shots. Tomes tallied on two out of three field shots and on one try from the foul line and Ed Smith counted on three of six long range tries to lead the way.

Vancouver found most of their plays checked closely. They outshot the Andys in both halves but most of their shots were hurried and several of them were blocked by the [illegible]-shooting Manitobans.

LEAFS AVERAGE LOW

An unofficial count showed that the Leafs counted only 14 of 69 shots, an average of about 20 per cent, while the Andys tallied on 19 of 55 chances, an average of about 34 per cent.

Winnipeg defended their 10-point lead doggedly through the second half, and after the resumption of play they threatened to turn the game into a rout as they scored eight points before the Leafs added another tally. They were leading 33-15 when Vancouver called a time out and rearranged their forces and started a rally that brought the count to 33-22. Then Winnipeg called a time out.

During the last 10 minutes the game was practically even, with Vancouver shooting desperately at [illegible] chance and the Andys passing as much as possible to keep the ball away from Leafs. The British Columbia champions never were able to cut the margin to less than seven points.

CARDINALS BEAT OUT CUBS IN BATTERS' BATTLE

Believe It Or Not — — By Robt. Ripley

DERBY FIELD CONTINUES TO BE CUT DOWN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30.—In face of storm signals flashed by Bimelech, the likely starting field in next Saturday's 66th running of the Kentucky Derby continued tumbling.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Red Rock which finished second to Dit Saturday in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica, will not compete because of an injured heel.

Devil's Crag, third in the Wood, also was declared out by a filled leg.

Arnold Hanger's Dit, against advice of trainer Max Hirsch, was en route to Churchill Downs from the east to contest Col. E. R. Bradley's Ace—and the "people's choice"—in the $75,000 added three-year-old classic.

Hirsch explained he thought running Dit in three big races in as many weeks would be too hard on the gelding. He is entered in the Preakness next week.

The most optimistic guessers predicted—with their fingers crossed—that the field would approximate 12 (there were 127 nominated), but others said six to eight would be a closer figure.

These are considered strong starting possibilities, in addition to Bimelech and Dit: Mioland, Pictor, Roman, Sirocco, Gallahadion, Royal Man, Isolad and Sky Dog or Gallant Dream. Connaught and Black Brummel are long possibilities.

Alberta Athletes Plan Goodwill Tour

CARDSTON, Alberta, April 30.—Alberta branch officials of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada plan an Alberta goodwill tour with several of the outstanding participants after the Canadian amateur boxing championships here May 23, 24 and 25, if other provincial branches approve, it was announced Monday.

Robert Scott Primrose, Alberta open heavyweight champion, of High River, became the first fighter to hand in his entry. "Danny" McCarthy, 17-year-old Alberta tiffist, will seek the 118-pound Canadian crown.

Martin's Single Is Deciding Blow

ST. LOUIS, April 30.—Pepper Martin, St. Louis Cardinals' raging "wild horse", came in as a pinch-hitter in the 10th inning Monday and singled, driving in the winning run to defeat Chicago Cubs 6-5 in a National League baseball game.

The Cubs gave a near-record exhibition of futility with men on bases, stranding 17 in the regular nine innings, within one of the league's high mark.

The two teams matched homers. Terry Moore and Johnny Mize banged them for the Cards and Phil Cavaretta and Augie Galan for the Cubs.

Dizzy Dean started for Chicago and was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning after the Cardinals had pounded his "nothing ball" for eight hits and five runs.

Reds Clean Up Series With Buca

CINCINNATI, April 30.—Home runs by Harry Craft and Bill Werber in the seventh and eighth innings nullified Max Butcher's five-hit hurling as Cincinnati Reds swept their series-of-three with Pittsburgh 3-2.

Paul Derringer, who scattered nine hits in chalking up his second triumph, set down the first seven Pirates who faced him.

DETROIT, April 30.—Detroit Tigers scored their second straight American Baseball League decision over Bob Feller as they downed Cleveland Indians 4-3 in a game played in a drizzle.

Yankees Triumph In Weird Display

WASHINGTON, April 30.—A weird display of baseball brought New York Yankees a 5-4 American Baseball League victory over the Senators, ending a five-game Washington winning streak and a three-game losing string for the world champions.

The Yanks made three errors and were outhit 8-7, but Spud Chandler generally was effective with runners on base.

BATTLE JACK SETS RECORD AT PIMLICO

BALTIMORE, April 30.—Running the six furlongs in the fastest time ever recorded for the six-year-old stake, J. W. V. Martin's Battle Jack scored a three quarter length triumph in the Baltimore spring handicap as Pimlico opened its 12-day, stake-a-day meeting before a crowd of 15,000.

Over a racing strip that was lightning fast, Battle Jack carried the sky blue silks of the young Maryland sportsman to victory in 1:11 1-5 to cut three fifths of a second off the stake record previously set by Asterod. The time was only two-fifths of a second off the track record.

Battle Jack, ridden by Jockey Lucas Dupuy, beat out Circle M ranch's Speed to Spare. Gustave Ring's Lady Maryland was third.

The victory was worth $2,770 to the winner, which paid $10.10 for $2.

Gotham's Baseball Fans Surprised and Worried

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Mingled with the slightly surprised looks of most New York baseball fans you occasionally will see a long face with its owner asking "did you ever hear of the world champions?"

There are still longer faces going around in utter silence. They're on the Giant fans, who are rather resigned to their fate. But the boys from the Bronx are beginning to wonder what has happened to the Yankees.

EMBARRASSING INDEED

They're not yet ready to admit that the four-time world champions can be beaten, and they'll tell you confidently everything will be fine just as soon as Joe Dimaggio gets back into the lineup. Still it has been embarrassing to have the Bronx Bombers lose five of their first nine games and fall at one time as low as seventh place.

It's easy enough to see that the Yanks' difficulty has been their failure to hit. They've connected for only 62 blows—an average of slightly under seven a game—and have hit only six homers so far. They've been dropping close decisions because they couldn't connect in the pinches, and they have been snarling at the umpires when decisions went against them. In fact, they haven't been looking like the Yankees at all.

Manager Joe McCarthy professes not to be worried about the slump.

"Remember our start last season," he says. "We lost three out of our first eight, and we did that with Dimaggio in the lineup."

SWITCHES OUTFIELD

Still McCarthy switched his outfielders a couple of days ago, sending Charley Keller back to right and George Selkirk to left. He admits Keller seems happier in his old post. And yesterday he benched Bill Dickey and won a ball game when Buddy Rosar drove in the winning run with his third hit.

Dickey and Dimaggio may be the answer to all questions as to why the champions have made so few hits. More than one expert has said the Yanks will begin to crack up as soon as their star catcher weakens. And Dickey can show only six hits for a .200 average so far.

Aussie Ruggers Beat Marsouins

BEYROUTH, Syria, April 30.—An Australian army rugby team sent from Palestine administered an 11-3 defeat here Monday to a French army combination known as the "Marsouins." Many of the natives attending the match in the Municipal Stadium had never seen a rugby game before.

YOU PICK A SURE WINNER in this spirited, fast-stepping McLaughlin-Buick. In looks, in action, in stamina, it's a true thoroughbred.

That's why this fleet, true-to-form pacemaker leads the field today—just as it has done for more than 30 years.

Its big Dynaflash straight-eight power plant—micropoise-balanced now to the smoothness of a wrist watch—gets you around in a jiffy—and its coil springs all around see that bad roads make no difference.

And all the time its easy Handishift transmission, its quick uptake, its really thrilling pace, make handling this honey a pleasure that wipes worry and fretting right out of your mind!

It's smart and distinguished looking. It's thrifty on fuel, oil, repairs—springs, for instance, never need "lube jobs".

FAIR, MILD IS FORECAST HERE: MERCURY CLIMBS

Edmonton temperatures continued their slow, but steady climb Tuesday as the sun fought to break through a fairly heavy blanket of clouds. Temperature at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday was 46 above, four degrees higher than the reading taken at the same hour Monday. Average temperature in the city Monday was four degrees higher than the mark established Sunday, the mercury reaching a high of 54 above and dropping to a low of 39 above.

The meteorological station predicted fair and mild weather for the capital city Tuesday and Wednesday, but added a rider of "possible rain" as they scanned the threatening heavens. A few drops of rain fell in the city about 8:45 a.m. Tuesday, but did not even dampen the streets.

Rain was reported at several points in the near north overnight. Temperatures in the far north were climbing steadily, but remained from six to 10 degrees below the temperature in the city.

Improved weather conditions have resulted in the modification on the road ban on truck traffic on the department of public works announced Tuesday. In the Peace River country the ban has been lifted with the exception of the Grande Prairie district where half-loadings are still in effect. From Calgary to Olds the highway is open to truck traffic with half-loadings in effect from Olds to Edmonton.

On the highway between Inverlake Berghker and Nevis, Lacombe to Rimbey and Lacombe to Nevis, half-loading is permitted.

Full loads may be carried from Calgary to Macleod, Calgary to Banff and Medicine Hat to Walsh.

Teachers Discuss Conciliation For Dispute On Salary

Executive council of the Edmonton Teachers' association at a meeting Monday night, decided to investigate the possibility of having the Alberta minister of trade and industry appoint a conciliator under the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act to induce both parties, the teachers' association and the public school board, to continue negotiations in the present salary dispute. The teachers are seeking restoration of salary cuts which have been in effect, at varying levels, since 1931.

Platform Battle

New Librarian

MRS. EDITH GOSTICK, former Social Credit M.L.A. for Calgary, who has been appointed provincial librarian.

EDITH GOSTICK NEW LIBRARIAN FOR PROVINCE

Former Social Credit member of the legislature for Calgary, Mrs. Edith H. Gostick has been approved by the government as provincial librarian, it was announced Tuesday. She will commence her duties in the immediate future.

Mrs. Gostick was elected to the legislature at the provincial general election of 1935 and was defeated March 21 last.

The post has been vacant since Colin G. Groff was dismissed soon after the present government took office in September, 1935.

Mrs. Gostick is the second former Social Credit member of the house to receive a civil service appointment since the March 21 election. The first was H. E. Ingrey, former member for Drumheller, who was appointed investigator of applications for mining locations, in the lands and mines department.

In Flying Force

Assistant accountant with the C.N.R. and resident of Edmonton for the past 20 years, Bryce Cozens, 11 Gaucher Apartments, has been called up for service in the Royal Canadian Air Force and will leave shortly for St. Thomas, Ont., to commence training. Mr. Cozens was an observer with the rank of lieutenant in the R.A.F. during the last war.

PONTIAC, Ill., April 30—A tornado struck the northwest side of Pontiac late yesterday, leaving at least one person dead and about 20 injured.

12 SUCCESSFUL IN A. R. P. TEST HELD IN CITY

Members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade air raid precaution class, twelve persons passed examinations Monday evening, which entitle them to take written examinations on Monday next. In the event of the class of 12 being successful next Monday, they will be qualified as Grade I instructors in A.R.P. work. Should they fail, they will be qualified as Grade II instructors, limited in the range of instruction they may give.

Dr. W. S. Niewchas examined the applicants, Miss N. Cran, Miss C. Smithson, Miss A. Shaw, Mrs. C. Merritt, Mrs. E. Rymer, and A. Erickson, G. Moreau, F. Baker, J. Rymer, S. Emmott, H. Gillyon and E. C. Emmott.

Each applicant gave a ten-minute lecture on some part of the course, and later took oral examinations.

Espionage Ring In Switzerland Said Acting For Allies

BERNE, April 30—Military authorities announced last night an espionage ring headed by a retired Swiss lieutenant-colonel had been gathering information on Germany for the Allies. When the arrests of three persons were announced April 20 it was believed by police that the ring was working for Germany. Those held are Dr. Hans Trueb, 54, the retired officer; his wife, Helene, 43; and Kurt Mueller, 26, a postal employee.

Alberta Relief Official Leaves Province Post

Appointed in November, 1935, to the clothing store branch of the provincial relief branch, V. Gobel has been notified his services will be no longer required as the branch is being reorganized.

Mr. Gobel, in 1934, was active organizing for the Social Credit forces. He carried on this work into 1935 and after the general election of that year, was appointed to the post he now relinquishes.

Since the election of March 21 last dismissals, in addition to Mr. Gobel, include Dr. H. K. Groff, chief medical officer to the Workmen's Compensation Board; Mrs. Julia Jackson, a Fort Saskatchewan jail matron, and G. M. Mathieson, accountant and supervisor of improvement districts.

Hungary Gives Slovakia Warning

BUDAPEST April 30.—If the rights of the Hungarian minority in Slovakia, a protectorate of Germany, are not respected, Hungary will "not hesitate to act in defence of her national rights," Hungary today warned Slovakia.

Whitecourt Flood

WHITECOURT, April 30.—Half a dozen residences have been flooded here and furnace fires extinguished at the Western Construction Company's lumber premises as a result of a 13-foot rise in Beaver Creek. The water level was dropping Tuesday. The flood resulted from a 16-hour rain which melted snow in the hills. Several residents have taken up temporary quarters with friends until their homes are pumped dry.
